

GREYS AGAIN EKE OUT WIN

In one of the most hotly contested water meets in the history of Camp Kawanhee, the Greys won over the Maroons to the tune of 117½ to 115½. The weather was perfect to make the boating and canoeing events interesting and difficult.

The first upset in the afternoon's competition was the event of canoe swamping by the master campers. The Maroon team of Pickering and Force became so excited as to the outcome of the contest that they upset themselves amid the mirth and laughter of the well filled gallery.

The wind and waves rather played havoc with the midget canoe doubles, hand paddling. When the spray of battle had finally cleared away, eight midgets and four canoes were found all wrapped up in each other in the vicinity of the water wheel near the R. C. Frank's dove nest.

The master campers again came to the fore in the boating-canoeing medley relay race. That

"RAW MEN" GRIPS VAST AUDIENCE

The curtain slowly drew back. The audience was tense and quiet. The production, "Raw Men," was about to begin.

The play was then very excellently portrayed by those two sterling actors and men, George Tittman and Whitney Murphy. Mr. Tittman played the part of Clyde, the younger of the two characters; and Mr. Murphy was Dan, the older member of the cast.

The scene was laid in Alaska where the two men were doomed to die if they didn't leave before the heavy snow set in. Clyde was dying but didn't want to die alone. Dan finally decided to leave Clyde, but later returned in time for the latter to go to the great beyond while Dan was present.

This splendid performance was supplemented by a trumpet and concertina duet, a solo by Dave Miller, renditions by the camp orchestra, and the Moose Lodge stunt. This stunt was, to many, the best part of the program.

NEWEST CRAFT TO BE HOUSE-BOAT

Ship ahoy! The scow which Admirals Crawford, Milligan, Larkin and Adriance have almost completed is not really a scow! It is a HOUSE BOAT!!

They launched this magnificent creation amid the cheers of Bob "Tippecanoe" Studebaker and Don Wambaugh. They expect to set sail sometime in August. (They failed to mention what year). Their course will probably take them to the Narrows and then to Bass Rock. After that, it will be a mystery to everyone. They will anchor somewhere on Lake Webb. To sleep out in this so-called "boat" is their intention. It will have accommodations for four passengers. The cabin will be nine feet long by six feet wide.

CONTEST!

The Wigwam offers one bar of candy to the camper who submits the best name for the above ship. Simply write your idea on a slip of paper and put it in the mail box.

Editorial

In a discussion recently as to which organization in camp was the most worthwhile it was almost unanimously decided that the Sachem groups were the best.

When we ponder over this subject, we easily see why the decision went so strongly in favor of the Sachems. These boys meet once a week to discuss projects for the betterment of our camp. What ideal could be higher?

Yet, with all this the groups are helpless without one certain thing. That thing is simply this, namely, the cooperation of the campers. Every Saturday evening at campfire these boys make certain suggestions. But what good are these recommendations if they are not carried out? None at all.

Therefore, fellow-campers, let's pitch in one hundred percent and give the Sachems a lift!

The league progresses. The Yanks in the American league and the Reds in the National, profiting by the losses of the Indians and the Giants respectively, have now forged into first place while the Boston Americans and the St. Louis Nationals have not as yet won a game.

mass of bone, brain and brawn, Jack Havighurst, was so heavy that his boat caught on a rope stretched between the two docks. He finally got off with the help of one of the members of the swimming department, and his team came home to a very admirable victory, thanks to the superb canoe bobbing of Dick Force.

Van Ingen would surely have won the obstacle race in a walk-away if he hadn't tried to put on his balloon and blow up his pajamas. As it was, he barely nosed out Neidig and Force, who scratched.
