Maroon Momentum Undiminished

The Maroons continued on their merry way, steadily widening the gap between their total and that of their rivals. At the campfire of Saturday, August 6th, Dave Fergus reported the score to date as: Maroons, 8617; Greys, 7006. The Maroons had added another 541 points to their advantage to expand it to 1611. The figure is impressive, but still by no means conclusive, for bigger leads than that could be wiped out in the final week's deluge of points. With this in mind, a certain eminent Grey could take the philosophic point of view that at present the Maroons are running next to last, while the Greys are up there in second place.

In the tally of sports events, the Greys had a disappointing break. Their 90-84 victory in the Saturday water meet earned them the major laurels of the week, but only a single 25-point bonus. The Maroons, on the other hand, enjoyed two such 25-point helpings of gravy from a couple of little-noted contests, the two-boat sailing regatta of August 6th, and their all but forgotten 17-10 victory in the hitherto unrecorded basketball game of July 26th. The balance therefore swung 151 to 125 in favor of the Maroons.

For the first time this season all nine major activities weighed in with Achievement Levels. The Aquatics Department made its initial report of twenty-five completed levels worth 490 points, divided 290 to 200 in favor of the Greys. Boating again provided the biggest jackpot, forty-nine levels scored at 1405 points, of which the Maroons claimed 860. Athletics as well moved up to four figures with thirty-four levels valued at 1015 points, split 515 to 500 to the advantage of the Maroons.

Plans for Homebound Trips Announced

Kawanhee will break camp on Thursday, August 25th, to terminate the 1960 season. The Directors have issued the following statements concerning arrangements for the transportation of campers to their homes.

"Boys for Connecticut, New York, Wilmington and Washington leave Boston via the New York, New Haven and Hartford line at 1:00 P. M. Thursday, August 25th, and arrive in New York City (Grand Central Station) at 5:15 P. M., in Wilmington at 9:46 P. M., and in Washington at 11:30 P. M." R. C. Frank.

"Ohio boys leave camp on August 25th and arrive in Columbus on Friday, August 26th, at 2:35 P. M., E. S. T., on New York Central train #323. The plan now is to take a historical trip of two and a half hours in Boston. Fred Hoster, Senior Counselor, and Junior Counselors Ned Seibert, Bill Boothby and Charles Clarke will supervise the trip." G. R. Frank.

Clarke and Seibert Pass J. M. G. Exams

Kawanhee was notified on August 6th that two of its candidates for Junior Maine Guide certificates, Charlie Clarke and Ned Seibert, had successfully passed the 1960 examinations. These notable awards were announced at the campfire and the two Junior Counselors were warmly congratulated on their signal accomplishment. Six Senior campers and Junior Counselors took the J. M. G. course at Kawanhee this summer under the supervision of John Fulda.

The purpose of the state-wide Junior Maine Guide program is to train young men and young women between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one in the skills and techniques necessary for actual, survival living in the Maine woods. In the various camps associated with the program, the candidates spend the month of July in rigorous training courses. At the end of the month they take their examinations in the testing center set up by the official state committee on Mooselookmeguntic in the Rangeley region. This year's testing session for boys took place between July 26th and July 30th. There trained men, many of them Maine Guides, test the candidates' knowledge and abilities in: canoeanship (including repair); shelter-making and fire-building; wet weather fires; axmanship; first aid; assembly and use of trip equipment; mapping of the camping area as well as facility in the reading and use of topographical maps; trees; forest fires and fire fighting; state fire regulations; information on the map of Maine; fishing regulations; rifle rules and regulations; and group encampment. The tests are, to put it mildly, "tough", and most of those who pass them do so only on the second or third try.

In commending all of this summer's Kawanhee group, John Fulda remarked that he did not know which one he envied most, Seibert for the memorable feat of winning his certificate in one season, or Clarke who had the rewarding experience of attending the testing sessions for three seasons.

Katahdin's Knife Edge Awees Climbers

Katahdin, Indian for "Greatest Mountain", the highest mountain in Maine, lies about eighty miles north of Bangor between the East and West Branches of the Penobscot River. Katahdin is 5,240 feet high. Kawanhee groups had not climbed Katahdin in several years, but 1960 was to be Katahdin year. On August 21st, twenty-one boys led by Ed Chace and John Fulda set out to the north with the Clarence Bateman at the wheel of the camp bus. In the party were Bill Boothby, Roger Liddell, Jack Alexander and George Benua, Junior Counselors, and B. Connor, D. Bittenbender, R. Bittenbender, K. Love, D. Brunton, T. Pears, T. Hirsch, R. Shepard, F. Stewart, H. Ticknor, C. Compther, R. McGee, G. Noble, D. Savage, R. Barnes, and J. Osborne, campers.

The group took the private road operated by the Great Northern Paper Company to Ripogenus Dam, and thence over Baxter State Park roads to Roaring Brook Camp, operated by state rangers, where camp was made for the night.

Tuesday dawned wet. A dismal rain fell. But Bates was his usual cheery self and perhaps that was why the rain clouds fled. After breakfast was eaten and trail lunches packed, the group took off in the truck at 8:30 A. M. for Katahdin Stream Camps on the other side of the mountain at the base of the Hunt Trail. Arriving there we started up the trail at 9:50 A. M., Bates accompanying us to the falls. Until 12:10 P. M. the climb was uneventful. Then we came to high and spectacular ledges and up we went, over, around, and under huge boulders, often aided by iron handholds cemented in the rocks. We ate the trail lunches at 1:05 P. M. At 2:15 P. M. we came to the wide stretches of the Plateau and, at 3:35 P. M. to Baxter Peak, having made a stop at the famous Thoreau Springs.

Baxter Peak, Katahdin's highest point, is thrilling in itself, but to the east lay something which took our breath away. There, poking jagged angular masses into the clouds were the South Peak, Chimney Peak and Pamola Peak. These, curving away in a jagged semicircle, appeared to be unreal, unworldly masses. One camper gasped, "Do we climb that?" We did!

This trail, called the Knife Edge, is well named. The Knife Edge on Mount Adams is broad as a barn door when compared with this. Only pictures can suggest the thrills of moving over this spectacular trail. We climbed South Peak at 3:55 P. M., and down to the Needle's Eye at 4:30 P. M. This is a deep col between two peaks. We took fifty-five minutes to bring all of our party through it.

We left the summit of Pamola Peak at 5:25 P. M. and took the precipitous Dudley Trail down toward the Chimney Pond Camps. Actually, from the peak we looked directly down on the roofs of the shelters of this camp far below. One and a half hours later we arrived in a shower and our rain gear. There a ranger misdirected us on our way to Roaring Brook Camp over an old trail. After an hour and a half of stumbling down this misguided brookbed with its gulleys and boulders, two passers-by set us on the new trail leading through the woods over soft vegetable-soil footing and we covered the remaining three and a quarter miles in relative comfort.

When we reached Roaring Brook Camp, Bates had waiting a wonderful dinner of good stew, corn on the cob, hard bread, cocoa and peaches. But before that, Bates (Oh, praise his name forever!) had made cold lemonade which lasted no time at all and wetted down our parched throats. We didn't bother to wash the dishes. We threw a tarp shone down on us, and during the night a herd of moose gazed at us too. We did not know this, however, until sandy road.

Breakfast of fruit, hot cereal with raisins, french toast and more of Bates' marvelous cocoa (Anyone will tell you that Bates makes the best cocoa ever!) made us feel wonderful. Clean-up and packing consumed little time. By 10:00 A. M. we were headed back to Kawanhee, with one of the really great trips a memory.

So, Ed, which is better, Washington or Katahdin? I can only answer that I do not know. How do you compare two things which are great? I say—climb both and you decide. Maybe, even as I, you will say that both are great but, boy, oh boy, that Katahdin is really something!

Mountains, Minerals and Skookamee Beach

In addition to the Katahdin trip, the week saw Kawanhee put a number of less ambitious expeditions into the field. Tuesday, the Hawks and Deers climbed Mt. Blue in two shifts, a morning group led by Jack Welton and Jim Holden, and an afternoon party convoyed by Dave Mallery and Brad Welton. Thursday assorted Moose, Lynx and Bears set out with John Fulda and John Bobb to climb Tumbledown but, experiencing a change of heart, they detoured to Swift River for a swim. Eleven mineral hunters visited Mt. Plumbago and Perham's with Forrest Dexter on Friday. Meanwhile, with "trip points" mentioned more and more frequently as the bottleneck to many a Campcraft level, lodge "overnights" to Skookamee Beach became increasingly popular. With Clay Davenport and John Bobb, the Lynx and the Falcons took over this outpost campsite for Tuesday night, and cooked their supper and breakfast there. They were followed by Gene Cayten and the boys of the Birch Lodge Thursday night, and by the Panthers with Dave Mallery Friday. Sunday, August 7th, brought the Bears and the Wildcats their turn for the afternoon Coos Canyon trip-and-dip.

Visits of Numerous Alumni Welcomed

Throughout the week, Kawanhee enjoyed the good company of former campers and counselors revisiting the shores of Webb Lake. Ken Beck, Ray Brown and Ted Nelson spent the week at the Inn. Ray, whose nine-year camp career ended as recently as 1956, is now associated with a well known law firm in Columbus, Ohio. Ken, a veteran of seven Kawanhee summers ending in 1952, is connected with a Columbus firm of C. P. A.'s, while the Bureau of Applied Social Research at Columbia University claims Ted's allegiance at present. On August 1st, Dr. and Mrs. Frederic Heimberger of Ohio State University arrived to spend the remainder of the vacation in their summer home on Center Hill, and Bill Myers with his family settled for a few weeks in the Myers' cottage on the shore near the Inn. Among Bill's distinctions as a camper and counselor of the '30's was his summer as Maroon Captain in 1938.

Perhaps the visits of former captains exert some beneficial influence on the fortunes of the current team. Three other Maroon leaders of earlier years have also been welcomed of late. The Captain of 1936's victorious Maroons, Reid Murphy of West Hartford, Conn., with Mrs. Murphy and their three children took over the big cottage on Pine Point for a two-week vacation. Warren Sullivan, Captain of 1939's winning team, spent the week end of July 31st here visiting his triplet sons, Bill, Jeff and Peter. Of considerably later vintage is Jock Duncan, Maroon chief in 1950, who with Mrs. Duncan, spent the week at the Inn.

The closing days of July saw a parade of other big Kawanhee names from the past. Mr. David Cory, of Englewood, N. J., and his son, Bob, two generations of Kawanhee campers, spent a day or two with their respective son and brother, Hoyt, a member of the Lynx Lodge this summer. Hicks Lawrence appeared on a similar paternal errand, as did Harris Adriance. Schuyler Van Ingen checked in at the Inn as well, although his paternal interests were focused on Kineowatha. Ben Bennett, familiar Shop Counselor of many recent seasons, spent Saturday, July 30th, in Kawanhee. Ben is devoting the summer to advanced study in Mathematics at the University of Delaware and expects to return to camp for the closing days of the season, after completing his course. Tom Cayten, who was a Junior Counselor in 1958, spent the last week of July here with his brother, Gene, and three campers of recent summers, Bob Keck, Rod Alexander and Mike Patton joined the congregation at the morning service that Sunday.

Blades Hold Lead: Dodgers Stay Unbeaten

The Little League standings of August 6th remained virtually the same as the preceding week's, although three games were contested. The Blue Blades won two from the Green Thunderbirds, 6-3 and 9-8, and then were beaten by the Red Sox, 7-5.

Monday, August 1st, Bruce Beal singled, doubled and tripled to lead the Blades in their first victory of the week. Tom Fischgrund pitched the entire game, giving up six hits, and was credited with the 6-3 victory. He also scored two runs while Birch, Carrick, Gladfelter and Beal tallied one apiece. The three runs for the losing Thunderbirds were scored by D. DelValle, Cummings and Nimkin. The pitcher for the T-Birds was Ben Griffin, who yielded nine hits.

The following evening the Blades launched a 9-run, 13-hit attack in their second straight conquest of the Green Thunderbirds. Bruce Beal pitched the route and gave up eight runs on only five hits. Bruce Birch led the Blue Blades in scoring with three markers. Rick Carrick crossed the plate twice and Gladfelter, Fischgrund, Dawes and Ferguson each tallied once.

Wednesday, August 3rd, the Red Sox came from behind with five runs in the last inning to take a 7-5 contest from the Blue Blades. The Sox' well-balanced attack sent Romey, McGee, Lawrence, C. DelValle, Matheson and Melcher across the plate with runs. Outstanding at bat was Chuck McGee who singled and tripled in three appearances. The Blades' John Gladfelter, a right-hander, walked ten and allowed four hits.

The Kawanhee Dodgers added a sixth to their string of unbeaten games by downing the Giants, 7-3, Thursday, August 4th, and lengthened their lead over the rest of the Babe Ruth League. The victors were paced by the timely hitting of Hoyt Cory, Bill Hartog and Jim Holden, and capitalized on thirteen walks issued by the opposition. Cory, Hartog, Osborne and O'Hare accounted for the Dodgers' tallies. Winning pitcher was Chuck Compher who walked four, struck out five, and gave up two hits. The Giants' markers were scored by Robin Wells, Randy Vockel and Randy Evans, the latter two collecting the Giants' only hits. Roger Liddell pitched the complete game and absorbed the loss.

The only game in the Midget Softball League saw the Apaches advance as they beat the Mohawks 6-5, Wednesday, August 3rd. The setback left the Mohawks in the cellar with a 1-3 record and two games remaining.

Water Polo Game Decides Meet for Greys

The Greys scored another aquatic triumph on Saturday, August 6th, when they took the water meet from the Maroons by the score of 90 to 84. The Greys won the first event, the Cross Country Relay, and with that initial advantage they managed to stay a few points ahead of their rivals straight down the schedule to the Canoe Bobbing. Ross Shepard's first in that race pushed the Maroons briefly into the lead by four points. The concluding water polo match, however, proved once more to be the decisive event of the day. Played in two five-minute periods and featuring markedly improved passing by both teams, this hard-fought contest was handily won by the Greys, 3 to 0.

Save for a couple of somewhat helter-skelter canoeing events which suffered a bit of competition from the wind, the program was run off promptly, enlivened by several touches of novelty. A race enigmatically listed as the "Senior Human Stroke" looked suspiciously like the humble old dog-paddle. The Maroons introduced an organized cheering section to spur on their contestants, and the chant of "Maroons, go! Maroons, go!", soon awakened the Greys to similar efforts. The officials produced a novelty of their own when they disqualified all swimmers in the breaststroke lap of the Junior A Relay for lunging to touch the finish line with one hand, rather than touching with both hands in the required fashion, and thereby changed what appeared to be the closest race in the meet into a draw. And "novel" is a mild adjective to apply to the irruption which punctuated the program midway. Two strangely constructed and ostensibly feminine figures suddenly invaded the swimming area, shrilly demanding diving instruction in voices somehow reminiscent of Fred Hoster and John Bobb. This was obligingly provided by Tony Hirsch and "Grandma" Bill Keating, whose wild antics culminated in a "Horse-and-Rider" dive which at least produced the biggest splash of the day. The fair (?) visitors meanwhile had drifted off into an extremely noisy canoe-over-canoe rescue. It took several accomplished dives by Keating, peeled down to normal shape, to restore order to the proceedings and to initiate properly the shiny new high diving board.

Kineowatha Entertains Tennis Deputation

Sunday brought an athletic event of genuine distinction. After dinner, a select group of tennis stars departed with Wade Rockafellow and Bill Boothby for an afternoon of mixed doubles at Camp Kineowatha in Wilton, Maine. No trip points were awarded for this expedition, but who cared! Certainly not the fortunate participants!

Kineowatha received the Kawanhee contingent with its usual gracious hospitality. Arrangements were in the capable hands of Miss Debbie Diehl, Kineowatha's Tennis Counselor, and the program was run off with smoothness and style. White clad referees, linesmen—linesladies, rather—and ball girls attended each court. The quality of the tennis played was worthy of the setting. The first match brought together the ranking players of both camps and produced some fine playing, as Miss Terry Fischgrund and Hal Eskesen defeated Cheryl Mercy and George Lamb, 6-1, 6-3. Chuck Park and his partner, Lulu Maxwell, gave a particularly good account of themselves in taking a close one from Judy Van Ingen and Bill Lawrence, 7-5, 7-5. Kathy Amberg and Dave Roth defeated Peggy Ives and Hoyt Cory, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, in a hard fought match, and Lisa Harris and Tom Fischgrund won from Anne Bonney and Bruce Beal, 6-3, 6-3. A large and courteous gallery watched the whole program, and the afternoon ended most pleasantly in a general round of conversation and fruit punch.

Rest Hours Flattened: Tournaments Begin

Significant developments marked the week in several quarters. The "horizontal", or Schofield, hour replaced the occasionally too social rest hour of old. Sign-ups for the annual tennis tournaments were completed on Monday and the first-round matches played off steadily through the week. Wrestling too approached the tournament stage and the process of sign-ups and drawings moved along so rapidly that Ben McCoy announced, in a burst of enthusiasm and obfuscation that he would be ready to stage "the finals the week before the preliminaries". Wednesday night the movie projector gagged on the second installment of Cowboy, time ran out on the horse opera Thursday evening, and we never did learn who "went that-away" in the end. The Nature Department sponsored a monster star hike, patronized by thirty or forty campers, to the Athletic Field Wednesday night after Taps. Most worthy of note was the systematic progress of the large class, under the instruction of Dave Fergus, through the final phases of the year's life saving course. Artificial respiration trials littered the dining hall porch Thursday, water-logged counselors had to be drained out of the swimming area Friday as the result of their service as voluntary victims in the "break" and "carry" tests, and thirty-six campers and Junior Counselors took the written examinations on Saturday.

Co-operative weather allowed the campfire to be convened on Council Point Saturday evening, and the Sunday morning service was held in the chapel on the shore. Dean Miller took the passage "Whatsoever things are just" as his text. That evening, the choir's fine singing of Climbing Jacob's Ladder and an absorbing short movie dealing with diamonds were the highlights of the vesper meeting in the Recreation Hall.
