Maroons Maintain Lead in Semifinal Score

The Maroons held onto the lead as the score took another tremendous leap in August's second report. On Saturday, August 12, the team totals were: Maroons, 12,599; Greys, 11,731. In the course of the week, the Maroons had added 5,883 points to their total, while the Greys were accumulating 5,854. The Greys had eked out a slight edge in the number and value of Achievement Levels earned, one hundred and eighty-nine levels for 5,760 points, as opposed to the Maroons' one hundred and seventy-six for 5,750. The latter, however, had won the water meet, 133 points, including bonus, to 94. These 39 points wiped out the Greys' 10-point advantage in levels and left the Maroons 29 points to the good for the week. These points built the Maroons' over-all lead up to 868 points, an impressive total, although not quite so impressive as the one announced at the campfire when 500 extra points erroneously found their way into the Maroon tally!

Three departments dominated the scoring on the Achievement Level charts. Athletics alone turned up one hundred and two levels worth 3,635 points, while Aquatics completed sixty-six valued at 2,090, and Boating polished off seventy levels scored at 2,270 points. This current concentrated pay-off in levels, as one department took the opportunity of remarking, is the result of all those preparatory weeks of instruction in July when few levels or none at all were forthcoming. Another notable aspect of the score was the number of third levels which it included. In all, ninety-seven were reported, and each one represented 50 points as well as the completion by a camper of the most advanced work open to him in one department or another.

Two departments failed to register their weight in the week's score, although both reported progress in their own peculiar fashions. Saturday's crop of Sailing ratings had not yet been translated into levels and so could not be scored. In Tennis plenty of productive activity was again announced, but once more in such exotic terms as "Volleyer" and "Groundstroker" which continue to defy reduction into anything so pedestrian as mere points. Since Saturday's was the last report on the score before the Banquet on August 24, the mystery of who has won Tennis points must await its solution in the season's final accounting.

Canoeists Explore Beaver Territory

The week's program of trips opened with two canoe expeditions. On Monday, August 7, a group drawn mainly from the Birch and Beaver lodges, with Ed Hamblin and Jack Welton, navigated the rock-strewn reaches of the Sandy River. After driving in the truck from camp through Phillips in the morning, the paddlers put in their canoes at Avon and traveled downstream, with time out for dips and lunch on the shore, to the neighborhood of Fairbanks where, late in the afternoon, they loaded themselves and their craft back on the truck and the trailer for the return to Kawanhee.

Tuesday canoeists of the Polecat and Pine Tree lodges, led by Mr. Welton and Mr. Bateman, carried out an afternoon and evening reconnaissance of the relatively unfamiliar ten-mile stretch of swamp lands, known as the Chesterville Game Preserve, lying along the Little Norridgewock north of Livermore Falls. They launched their canoes into Norcross Pond, paddled across the end of the lake and through a large culvert at the outlet, and worked their way up the narrow waterways northward. Much evidence of beaver activity was observed,—cuttings, runs, a large house, and a beaver dam over which the canoes had to be portaged. The beavers themselves failed to put in appearance, but numerous wild ducks were seen. Supper was eaten in the canoes and then the party retraced its course to the truck and returned to Kawanhee before Taps.

Trout Bite and Campers Eat at Tim Pond

For the first time in many years, the highly enjoyable fishing trip to Tim Pond was restored to the Kawanhee program. Tim Pond, which is tucked away in the forests of the Eustis region north of Rangeley, has long been famed for its trout. The trip left Kawanhee Tuesday morning, August 8, and returned in time for dinner Thursday, August 10. On board for this highly productive expedition were L. Brainard, D. Bittenbender, B. Connor, P. Connor, J. Gladfelter, J. Gerlach, K. Kaiser, W. Langer, T. Patton, D. Pearson, D. Roth, and that most renowned of Tim Pond fishermen, Mr. R. C. Frank. Because of his connection with the Fishing Department, Yours Truly was also included in the roll.

To give the reader an idea as to just what Tim Pond is like, the following is quoted from a pamphlet describing the area:

"If you want rest, recreation and trout you should spend a few weeks at Tim Pond." This is a direct quotation from the first folder describing Tim Pond, published by Julian K. Viles in 1896. It is still true. The thousand-acre pond has never been stocked with hatchery trout and for more than seventy-five years has produced annually an abundant population of natives up to twelve inches in length, with an occasional larger fish up to three pounds."

"Tim Pond is a do-it-yourself place. No guides. A few strokes of the oar and you are out of sight of camp, alone, and headed for any one of the dozens of coves, snags, inlets and springholes which look inviting to you. The state law forbids only the use of live bait, so you are left to your own devices, but many are partial to fly fishing."

After driving from Weld to Eustis and then traversing a six-mile private road which an engineer from the Merritt Parkway on a recent spring visit called "the roughest road I ever traveled", the Kawanhee fishermen settled down in the old but comfortable cabins of the Tim Pond fishing camp for two days of concentrated fishing—and of eating in the camp's dining room! The food was good, including plenty of the trout just landed, and never had some of the visitors seen so much of it all at one time. One breakfast they were served a six-course meal—man, oh man!

All had a wonderful time and were sorry to leave Thursday morning. About fifty trout were brought back to Kawanhee, after the boys had eaten at least part of their fill at Tim, to be served in the Dining Hall at supper Thursday evening. The members of the expedition are already talking enthusiastically about the next trip to Tim Pond which, according to reliable sources, has already been planned for 1962.

Kawanhee Climbers Scale Presidentials

The climax of the tripping season at Camp Kawanhee is the Presidentials Trip over the famous range in New Hampshire bearing that name. Extending in a giant horseshoe from north to south, the Presidential Range comprises Mount Madison (5,363 feet), Mount Adams (5,798 feet), Mount Jefferson (5,715 feet), Mount Clay (5,532 feet), Mount Washington (6,288 feet), and Mount Monroe (5,385 feet). During the three days, hikers on this trip are never below 4,500 feet altitude, sleeping in A. M. C. lodges at elevations of over 4,800 feet.

Nineteen campers led by Ed Chace, assisted by Gene Cayten and Clay Stites, left camp Wednesday, August 9, at 9:15 A.M. in the camp bus driven by Clarence Bateman.

The boys who made the trip were: Fred Ball, Bill Doyle, Phil Gockenbach, Tim Hirsch, Jim Paul, Ross Shepard, Ken Love, Dave Brooks, Jim Cookman, Bill Lawrence, Bob McGee, Chuck McGee, Tim Nolan, Derek Savage, Tim Pears, Bob Angerer, Chuck Compher, John Weisheimer, and Bill Neidig.

After a brief shopping tour in Gorham, N. H., to seek out wool socks, the party arrived at the Ravine House in Randolph at 11:35 A.M. After passing out the trail lunches and oranges, Ed led the party up the Air Line Trail. The going was steep and rugged. At 1:30 P.M. the lunches, packed at camp, tasted good. The canteens were passed around to all. At 3:20 P.M. the group reached the treeline and the Knife Edge up over the heights of Durand Ridge. The Knife Edge is a narrow path which traverses the increasingly high ridges. Before long the boys could see the Madison Spring Huts nestled in the col between Madison and J. Q. Adams. By 4:00 P.M. they were at the huts.

The huts on this range, as are others in the Franconias, are operated by the Appalachian Mountain Club, the actual management being in the hands of college boys who carry the food and other supplies up the mountains on their backs. They serve suppers and breakfasts as well as trail lunches. These meals are really terrific. After supper and breakfast, hikers assist in clean-up operations and the preparation of trail lunches. Hikers sleep in bunkrooms, one for men, another for women, in three-deck Navy-type bunks. Pillows and blankets are provided.

Supper the first night was made up of fruit juice, baked ham, three vegetables, cornbread, cocoa, tea, and coffee, plus salad and pudding.

After supper, most of the party ascended Mount Madison to get sunset pictures and to look across the Great Gulf toward mighty Washington. The boys could see several Cog Railway trains puffing up the mountain. For some of the boys, games of hearts, bridge, and chess, and conversations with other hikers took up the remaining time until lights went off at 10:00 P.M. Others studied the maps and guest books to see the signatures of Kawanhees of past years.

Reveille came at 6:30 A.M. Thursday. All were surprised to see Gene Cayten coming in the door with his bedding. He had slept all night outside to escape the snoring of several hikers. Gene said they sounded as if a Cog Railway train was in the same room with him. Breakfast consisted of fruit, hot cereal, coffee, tea, cocoa, scrambled eggs and sausage, as well as date bread served hot. After helping with the dishes and cleaning up the bunkroom, the boys were ready for the trail.

At 8:30 A.M. the group started up the lower reaches of Mount Adams toward the famous Gulfside Trail. In fifteen minutes they were at the cut-off loop over Mount Adams, the second highest peak in the range. The boys arrived at the summit at 9:15 A.M., equalling the guide book time. Here they looked off across the Great Gulf toward Mounts Jefferson, Clay and Washington, the last, towering above all else and looking the boys eye-to-eye across the wide gulf.

They started down at 9:30 A.M., only to be held up by a broken Boy Scout pack. Over the years these B. S. A. knapsacks and packframes have given all kinds of trouble. Ed managed to tie the frame together with a shoelace, and the group moved on. At Edmands Col, the low point or divide between Mounts Adams and Jefferson, the boys refilled their canteens, and basked in the warm sunshine in the lee of a steel shelter.

At 10:55 A.M. they began the ascent of Mount Jefferson, arriving at the summit at 11:30 A.M. Here, at an altitude of 5,715 feet, the boys ate lunch. They took to the trail down Mount Jefferson at noon, and rested at the Greenough Spring at the base of Mount Clay at 1:00 P.M. As they moved around Mount Clay, they met a group of men from the U. S. Forest Service who were busily engaged in painting the top rocks of the cairns bright orange-yellow and in painting arrows on the rocks.

By 2:00 P.M. the boys had reached the Cog Railway line as it ascends Mount Washington. They watched two ascending trains pass a descending train on a spur. In fact, the two ascending trains showered the campers with smoke and hot coal dust as they belched and puffed by. After two short rests, the group mastered the stiff climb to the summit of Washington where they visited the Weather Observatory, the Tip-Top House soda bar, and the points from which they could look out across the Great Gulf toward Madison and Adams. They could even see the Madison Huts nestled between the peaks so far away.

"Have we really come all this way?" asked Jim Paul. "Gee, it's a long way!"

After an hour spent on the summit, the group went down the Crawford Path to the Lakes of the Clouds Huts a mile and a quarter below the cone of Washington. Here they made up their bunks and rested until time for a wonderful supper of hot soup, roast beef, three vegetables, cornbread, tea, coffee, cocoa, salad, and pudding. Because a brief rain had come up over the mountains, no ascent of Mount Monroe was attempted that evening. The boys played cards, chess, and sang songs which the hut boys played on their guitars. Gene Cayten established, so the boys said, a Kawanhee record in making contact with the only available girl in the huts. This he did by making himself a fourth at bridge with the girl and her parents twenty minutes after their arrival.

The next morning dawned cool and overcast. After a fine breakfast of fresh grapefruit halves, hot cereal, blueberry cake, scrambled eggs, sausage, tea, coffee, and cocoa, the boys delayed their departure only long enough to help with the dishes, clean the dining room floor, and assist in other ways, and then they took off down the mountain to meet Bates. They followed the trail by means of the rock cairns through the heavy overcast, and arrived at the Headwall at 9:30 A.M.

Here the weather began to clear, at least below the Headwall. The climbers made their way slowly down the precipitous Headwall Trail. At the base they were disappointed not to find snow as they had in other years. They reached the Tuckerman Shelter at 10:30 A.M. and the bridges over the stream at 11:05 A.M. They ate trail lunches at the Crystal Cascades and admired the beauty of the famous falls. By 12:45 P.M. the group was at the Pinkham Notch Camps of the A. M. C. where it was to meet Bates. Several boys talked with George Hamilton, Manager of the A. M. C. huts. Others played horseshoes and read. Bates drove in at 2:10 P.M. with Tom Patton whom he had taken up the carriage road to the summit. The group arrived back in Kawanhee at 5:10 P.M., Friday, August 11.

Thus ended the big trip of 1961. The boys learned much about the beautiful and rigorous Presidentials. They conducted themselves throughout in all ways which reflect credit on their homes, their parents, and their camp. All agreed that they wanted to take the trip again. Each was impressed by the way the hut-men operate the Madison and Lakes of the Clouds Huts. These boys deserve all sorts of credit. All those who would read more about the

A. M. C. huts and the type of trip which Kawanhee takes are urged to read the article entitled "The Friendly Huts of the White Mountains", by Justice William O. Douglas, in the August 1961 number of National Geographic.

Blades, Bears Win Little League Games

Two games were played in the Kawanhee Little League during the week. In the first, played on August 7, the second-place Blue Blades defeated the Green Hornets by a score of 10-5. The Blades opened big with five runs, but the Hornets managed to catch them with five of their own in the 2nd inning. The rally was highlighted by Hornets' first baseman Ricky Wilson's double and steal of home. In the 3rd inning, however, the Blades loaded the bases and pushed across five runs, three of which were hotly disputed by the Hornets. All 5 tallies, however, were officially counted and the Blades went on to town, 10-5. Jim MacDonald was the big gun for the Blades with two solid hits, and pitcher Chris Henderson chipped in with one also.

In the other game of the week, played on August 9, the first-place Big Red Bears swamped the Black Magics 10-0. The Red Bears ran the bases so effectively that they managed to steal home four times. The Magics were unfortunately undermanned, being particularly handicapped by the temporary loss of their first-string pitcher, Tad Brockie. Bruce Leiper played a fine game for the Bears, while catcher Jim Glidden put out a great amount of effort for the luckless Magics.

First Touch Football in Senior League

In the first Senior League game of touch football, Connor's Albatrosses displayed their gridiron talent by defeating Shepard's Satans by a score of 19-7. The speedy Albatrosses outran and outpassed the Satans. Captain Smiley Connor, Roy Welton, and John Mogabgab each scored a touchdown for the Albatrosses. John Hays scored the only T.D. for the Satans on a pass play and a 20-yard gallop into the end zone.

The baseball action in the Senior League was limited to one game, played on August 8. Compher's red hot undefeated Chuckles again had the last laugh as they shut out the Albatrosses 4-0. For the Chuckles big Derek Savage blasted a homer which sailed all the way to the basketball court. Pitcher Perry Newton did an excellent job for the Albatrosses by holding the powerful Chuckles to four runs.

Maroons Come from Behind to Take Meet

Saturday, August 12, presented another beautiful afternoon for Water Sports. The Cross Country Relay again initiated the meet. John Gerlach, with the help of a significant lead achieved by canoeists Chuck Hoffhine and Pete

Connor, swam to the ropes in the final stage of the relay to bring glory to the Greys.

In a close finish in the Junior B Sidestroke Race Maroon Bob Sherwood edged out Duncan Orr of the Greys for first place. Another Maroon, Scott Tracy, proved to have more wind, or perhaps more skill, by winning first place in the Junior B Cub Ping-Pong Ball Blow. The capsized canoe of Derek Savage and Tip Weisheimer added a bit of excitement to the Senior In-and-Out Race which was won by their Maroon confreres Ross Shepard and Chuck Compher. Despite the expert blocking of Grey Craig LeCaptain in the Junior B Water Polo, the Maroon team managed to win that suspenseful event.

A Diving Exhibition, announced by Fred Ross, gave team competition a breather. Perry Newton and Larry Brainard displayed their adeptness in such dives as the back somersault, the jack knife, and the front dive with a half twist from the low board. High-board platform dives finished off the performance but fortunately not the performers!

With the resumption of competitive events, M. C. Dave Fergus reminded the spectators of the half-time score of 66 to 44 favoring the Greys. Maroon Sid Soons far exceeded any of his opponents with his skill in the Junior A Backward Swim Novelty Event. The Maroons first captured the lead in the Junior B Cub Dock Swim with Andy Doyle and Warren Acker winning first and second place respectively. The Greys bounced back in the Junior A Backstroke with Sonny Dargusch leading the way. The Maroons recouped in the next race, the Junior B Medley Relay, to clinch the meet. Junior A—Senior Water Polo concluded the events, adding to the Maroon lead and illustrating the deadly precision of such players as Ken Love and Ross Shepard. The final score including the 25-point bonus was: Maroons, 133; Greys, 94.

The Summary:

Staff Members Saluted Coming and Going

Two arrivals left camp population still growing at week's end in spite of one departure. On Saturday, August 12, the staff was reinforced for the end-of-the-season push by the return of two gentlemen well seasoned in Kawanhee ways. Ben Bennett reappeared to take up supervisory duties in the Shop which he has already discharged with great success through all or part of eleven earlier camp seasons. Ben spent the first part of this summer pursuing studies in higher Mathematics on a National Science Foundation scholarship at Ohio State University. From Columbus and scholastic preoccupations also came John Fulda, successively camper and Junior Counselor at Kawanhee the past four summers and winner of a Junior Maine Guide certificate in 1959. He was promptly absorbed by the Trip and Campcraft departments and Sunday evening moved on to Swift River to lend a hand in running the Outpost Camp.

Earlier in the week, Kawanhee regretfully said farewell to Uncle Charlie Long as he departed for his home in Canton, Ohio. His many friends in camp will miss his good company as sorely as those rowboats, forlornly awaiting fiberglass finishes under the Shop, will miss his expert hand.

Ex-Campers Pay Visits to and with Progeny

Among other visitors, the week end brought the return of one more former team captain, a Grey chieftain this time. Herb Erf, of Armonk, N. Y., whose seven-year camp career was highlighted by his command of the Greys in 1945, arrived on August 11 with Mrs. Erf and their two children for a stay at the Inn. He was joined there on Monday by his brother, Bob, whose camping years were also spent here in the 'Forties. Bob, too, was accompanied by his Mrs. Erf and their two children. Another past notable to put in a brief appearance was Clinton Gardner, a former camper who was one of the founders of the Wigwam when, as a private enterprise publication, it made its first shy appearance in 1935.

During the first ten days of August, the camp enjoyed more leisurely visits from several former members of the Kawanhee tribe. At the Inn was Walter Estabrook, of Columbus, Ohio, with Mrs. Estabrook, their youngest son and their baby daughter. Walter, himself a camper and counselor in the 1930's, is represented on the current camp roster by his two elder sons, John and Dick. From Midland, Texas, came Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Wambaugh with their two young prospective campers, Bill and John. Don's own Kawanhee career stretched from a debut as an Eagle in 1935 through several seasons as Boating counselor in the second half of the 'Forties. Ross Miller, Jr., also the veteran of many a camp season in the 'Thirties and early 'Forties, spent a week in these parts, visiting his parents, Dean and Mrs. Miller, and settling his own family, Mrs. Miller, two young sons and an even younger daughter, for a month in a cabin on the lake before business commitments recalled him to Hartford, Connecticut. Bob Studebaker, Shop counselor in the 1930's, and his son Dave, who was a Kawanhee camper two decades later, spent several days with the Windles and Mr. H. C. Marshall. Another two-generation combination of former campers,

Julian Cumberland and his older son, Bill, were also among those present in Kawanhee for a couple of days as they visited son and brother, Jock, who is one of this year's Falcons.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Smith drove up from New Haven, Connecticut, for an all too brief visit on August 4 and 5. It was Kawanhee's first glimpse of the former Betty Frank since her wedding in June.

Three-Day Blow Enlivens Week End

The week end's events moved along at a lively clip to the beat of a brisk wind which on Saturday scoured the clouds and haze out of the Gap and afforded Kawanhee the first clear view of Tumbledown which it has enjoyed in many a day. On Council Point in the twilight, campers, counselors and guests gathered for a campfire complete with its own Four Winds when Dan Beggs, Charlie Clarke, Ross Shepard and Tim Hirsch opened the proceedings by lighting the four symbolic little teepee fires in the familiar ritual. The Camp Awards were enlivened by the further unfolding of "Rade Wockafellow's" glamorous new Tennis terminology and by evidence that one more department, Nature, had gone patch-conscious with the presentation of "Naturalist" emblems to five campers on the completion of the three Senior levels. Dean Miller concluded the evening with the Biblical story of Gideon and the Three Hundred.

Sunday the wind had obviously settled in for a genuine three-day blow. Both of the day's assemblies were therefore held in the Recreation Hall. In his sermon at the morning service Dean Miller spoke of Storms and Raindrops. The feature of the evening gathering was an absorbing short film on voting narrated by Joseph E. Welch. The chief expedition of the afternoon was a trip to Coos Canyon for the Deer and Birch lodges.

Sunday evening opened the week-long operation of the Outpost Camp when the Eagles and Falcons migrated around the lake for a two-day stay on Swift River with Ken Reilly, John Fulda, Tim Hirsch and Wes Langer. According to plan, the Panther and the Polecat, the Pine Tree and the Hawk, and the Deer and the Birch, each pair of lodges in succession, will spend two days and a night in the wilderness camp before the end of the week. The final canoe trip of the season was launched Monday morning, August 14, with the departure of fifteen Junior A's and Seniors, under the command of Jack Welton, Dick Jordan and Charlie Clarke, for two days on the Kennebec.

This is the summer's last appearance of the Wigwam on its regular weekly schedule. One final number remains to be published but, since it must wait for the concluding round-up of all the points and levels and awards, it cannot be compiled until after the Banquet and Awards Ceremony on Thursday, August 24. Its appearance, therefore, will be tardy.
