MAROONS KEEP CLIMBING

With the first tug-of-war of the 1974 season, the Maroon team took the lead in point-earning. They have continued to lead ever since, with this week's final score standing at 13,243 to the Grey's 11,407. The boys on each team are still garnering levels and points; last week they earned a total of 1,605 in sailing alone. A Junior A and Senior Water Meet on Saturday resulted in another Maroon victory, 65 to 35.

Other events of last week were the two Chain-of-Ponds trips, an Eagle-Falcon climb of Mt. Bald for lunch, an exchange archery shoot with Kineowatha, and more Kineo-Kawanhee roller skating parties. Skit Night featured Beaver Lodge in quest for "the important papers." Charles Ward as King and John Tulloss, his aide, easily disposed of all their lodge-mates until the papers appeared.

The week ended as it began, with Bill Taylor's moving chapel services. Last Sunday, with Herb Birch in the role of Pilate and Jo Stockhausen as Mary Magdalene, Bill added new dimensions to the story of Christ's Crucifixion and Resurrection.

CHAIN-OF-PONDS TRIP GOES OUT

The First Chain-of-Ponds Trip went out with a rousing cheer for Billy Proctor. After one and a half hours of driving, the group stopped at Cathedral Pines to read about Benedict Arnold as this was one of his stops on his way to Quebec in 1775. After this short stop we continued to our campsite.

After setting up camp and having some p,b, & j's, we went to Canada to spend some money. After coming back from Canada we loaded into canoes and decided to take a trip up Horseshoe (sometimes called Snake) River. Steve "the Fish" Neri decided it was better to swim upstream than paddle up. After finally tiring of this, Steve decided to get back into the canoe and tipped it over. The rest of the trip was uneventful until three miles up the river where we came across a beaver dam. At this point we turned around to head back to camp. When the party returned, we built a fire and started to cook hamburgers. The kitchen crew of John Ireland and John Detrick did a great job of cooking and cleaning up.

That night before dark, Mitch introduced us to his "cookie pies" which are two pieces of bread with pie filling in between roasted over an open fire.

The next morning, we teamed up in canoes and went off down the lake. On the trip down, we stopped at last year's campsite which apparently had just been used due to the litter present. When we got down to the dam, we decided to take a swim in our shorts, but John White came out without his. After lunch, we decided to go back, but before we left, Mitch said, "The canoe which comes back with the most driftwood wins a prize." The winners of this contest were Chris McGinnis and Mark "Minnie" Minister. When we got back we started a hardy supper of stew. After cleaning up we hit the sack early after a hard day's trip.

The next morning, we went up the Horseshoe River again. When we got back, we started to pack up to return to Camp Kawanhee. After lunch, Billy Proctor arrived with the second Group. While they went on to Canada we cleaned up the campsite. When the Second Group returned we packed up the Bouncing Buggy and left.

Making the trip were: Mitch Greenawalt, Bill Taylor, John Ireland, Henry Blau, Pedro Borras, Tom Erchinger, Jim Haas, Pedro Iturrequi, Hector Jimenez, Brian Long, Steve Neri, John Detrick, Mark Minister, Tom Newbold, and John White, all of whom paddled a total of more than 24 miles on the trip.

CHAIN OF PONDS, ROUND TWO

THE CHAIN-O-PONDS TRIP — An overnight trip especially planned for young and less experienced campers. It is 85 miles from camp and passes through a country of dense forests and rare scenic beauty. We reach the Ponds in the early afternoon and enjoy a short paddle before supper. Tents must be pitched and bough-beds made comfortable for the night. The following morning a round-trip cruise of the Ponds is made and we break camp in time to reach Kawanhee for the 4:00 swim.

— Kawanhee Catalogue, 1941

The nice thing about Maine in general and Kawanhee in particular is that the rare, natural beauty which highlights each day is unchanging-unspoiled.

The second Chain-o-Ponds trip arrived at the campsite near the Canadian border in the early afternoon of Wednesday, July 24. As we hopped out of The Bouncing Buggy, we looked out across a scene that must have been the same scene those campers in 1941 saw — unbroken forests, rising up into the mountains and reflected back in the water of a lake untouched, it seemed, by the modern world.

We unloaded our gear and moved it into the tents just vacated by the first Ponds trip, and discussed the canoeing ahead with the boys who had already made the trip.

After unpacking, we climbed into the Buggy again for a quick trip to Canada to buy munchies. After negotiating with the customs agents at the border, we were again in Maine and ready for some canoeing.

As the first trip loaded up and said goodbye, we made ready for an afternoon trip up the Horseshoe River, which flows into the lake near our campsite.

The paddle upstream was not easy, but the wildlife and beauty of the river made the paddling easier. We finally turned around, and found that downstream was definitely preferable to upstream, racing back to camp with the now-favorable current to wake up Scott McMinn, who had stayed behind to "guard the camp".

As the counselors prepared dinner, it was free-for-all canoeing for the campers, who played coast-guard and other water games that only campers understand. Mike Dehlendorf and Sam Detrick were the "leech patrol," and kept the local waters free of the parasites by catching all that they saw and keeping them in a bottle to take home to Candy.

Eventually, it was "all boats in" as dinner was ready and everyone was hungry. Dinner was hamburgers, and everybody "did their own thing" with the meal. Charles Ward had White Castle burgers, frying them in onions with his own mess kit. Nobody wanted to talk to him for the rest of the night.

Big Macs, Quarter Pounders, and Triple Deckers were also in evidence.

For dessert, we had planned on "cookie pies," with Mitch Greenawalt's pie makers — he left them for us. We anxiously searched the supplies for our requisitioned pie filling, and eventually found it — fifteen pounds of it. Needless to say, there was plenty for everyone.

There was no trouble getting everyone to sleep that night . . . a couple of Ken Chapman stories did the trick. No rap on Ken's story-telling abilities — everyone was tired and the sleeping bags felt pretty good. As the last people said their good nights and crawled into bed, it began, and the soft sound of the drops on canvas lulled us quickly to sleep.

The morning dawned cloudy, but dry, and everyone pitched in to make a wet-weather fire the finest of the J.M.G.'s would have been proud of. Well . . . satisfied with. Anyway, we cooked up a fine breakfast of sausage and French toast, and after the dishes were done, we prepared to explore the Chain of Ponds.

We loaded up the canoes with supplies — mostly PB&J's, plus some leftover sausage that Ken Chapman brought along for no apparent reason, and shoved off for a day of canoeing.

The first thing, practically, that happened, was that the Keny Brothers, who were supposedly leading the way, led us into a pond with no outlet. Ken Chapman, who was bringing up the rear, eventually came in and informed them of their misdeed, and after doing a quick about-face, we were in shape and on our way again. We went through several ponds by way of reed-filled narrows and across streams, and finally arrived at the small dam which was our destination for the day, after a stop for lunch. There, we swam, and Paul Yavis, following the example of two counselors who will remain unnamed, went skinnydipping to the amazement of all. We played in the fast current below the six foot high dam, trying to wade through it to the dam itself. Nobody could quite make it, however, but it was a good time and, (I can't resist this), a dam site.

Finally, we made ready for the return to camp. It was a long paddle, and the Kenys arrived first nearly a mile ahead of the rest of the group. Despite rumors that he had not paddled all day, Scott McMinn's canoe, including oarsmen Paul Yavis and Mike Wilson, were second.

As the exhausted counselors watched in disbelief, the Coast Guard game continued and most of the boys were out in canoes for the rest of the day.

Stew over noodles was the dinner recipe, and as the stew simmered, a crowd of campers with plates in hand formed around the cooking fire. Ken Chapman, head chef, finally deemed the savory fare ready for consumption, and it turned out to be so good that it aroused cheers of "we want the cook" from the satisfied campers.

There were more, many more cookie pies later on, plus a limited amount of coconut covered marshmallows imported from Canada. Then, once again, it was bedtime for all.

On the third day, we did little but paddle around and, eventually, take down the camp. We started the day with bacon and French toast, and a large quantity of "bug juice."

Too soon, Bill Proctor arrived in his Bouncing Buggy shuttle service and we packed up and said our goodbyes to the Chain-O-Ponds. It was a good time, fun with a purpose, you might say, for all, even Dave Getty who didn't go.

Those who did go were John Cohen, Mike Dehlendorf, Sam Detrick, Mike Harrison, Jr., Jon Lupfer, Moon Man Moomjy, Louie Louie Louie San Juan, Carlos Trigo, Mike Wilson, Paul "the streak" Yavis, Harold Abram, Al Natelli, Rich Seeley, Pete Shaw, Chip Trayner, and Charlie Ward. Counselors were Ken "Professionally speaking" Chapman, Jim Keny, Tim Keny, Scott McMinn, and Maxwell the Giant Blue Foot.

"BECAUSE IT WAS THERE"
THE EAGLE-FALCON ASCENT OF BALD MOUNTAIN

Thursday the 25th dawned clear and bright upon the Webb Lake valley. A feeling of nervous tension engulfed the Eagle-Falcon area of Camp Kawanhee as all those concerned knew the day of judgment had arrived. Could we make it?

Some were extremely confident. Among that group were Adam "Kung Fu" Etherington, John Ketterer, and David Mitchell, all feeling the urge to run up the trail of what has been termed an "easy climb" by the bigger boys.

Others, like Mark Brzezinski and Rex Lynne wondered if they really ought to climb Bald.

After morning activities, we packed the Bouncing Buggy and Lorenzo Baker drove us over to the foot of the trail on the Weld-Wilton road. As we arrived, everyone saw John Morr's VW parked at the foot of the trail . . . so you thought you could escape the campers for a day, huh, John? . . . ha!

We immediately began the ascent with sherpa Peter Leslie carrying the lunch and oxygen we would need at the top. A nominal pace was established by our sherpa, but all too soon this became rigorous, especially for the above mentioned trio of "runners."

After a brief rest in which leader Baker established some rules and order for the hikers — knowledge obtained from previous trips in New England and Colorado — we resumed the assault at a slower pace, only to find the "tired trio" unable to cope with such a luxurious pace. Nevertheless, we reached the summit an hour or so after beginning, with tired muscles and huge appetites.

After devouring the banquet meal of PB&J's, candy bars, and oranges, explorations of the summit began. This culminated in the unbelievable capture of not one but two wild mountain frogs by Mark "Toad" Brzezinski. His locating of the pond was aided by Lars Jensen and Drew Detrick, veterans of last year's Eagle ascent.

Meanwhile, O.J. Altmaier and Bill Albershardt were busily filling out the signout sheets for the next day's activities — a true sign of their dedication to a newly established Kawanhee clerical procedure.

The descent began with sherpa Leslie in the lead again, however, after attempting to establish a new trail down, he finally bowed to the greater experience of Baker, who easily found the trail into the woods below. Numerous pushing tactics were invented and improved upon to hurry the descending campers along, but this was soon put to a halt by safety minded Leader Lorenzo Baker, i.e., L.L. Baker. Again the descent was resumed, much to the chagrin of Tom Wallace, who claimed his knees were starting to bend the wrong way.

The Bouncing Buggy was found and an uneventful trip back to camp was climaxed by some cheering.

A few in the group enjoyed the refreshing coolness of Lake Webb while others went directly to activities. An easy climb, you ask? It should be pointed out that none of the Eagles or Falcons had any desire to make another ascent the next day.

We were Mark Brzezinski, Drew Detrick, Mike Gale, Juan Carlos Iturrequi, Rex Lynne, and Mark Nachman, Eagle; Adam Etherington, Lars Jensen, John Ketterer, Jack Lang, David Mitchell, Paul Summers, and Tom Wallace, Falcon; Lorenzo Baker, Peter Leslie, Mike Altmaier, and Bill Albershardt — leaders. David Colescott, Eagle, who left camp two days before was remembered at the top by us all.

BRAVES AND SQUAWS SHOOT

Last Tuesday, thirteen campers set off for a combined Kawanhee-Kineowatha archery shoot. Camp Kineowatha is a girls' camp located in Wilton, Maine, about fifteen miles away. Various events are arranged each summer between the two camps, an archery tournament being one of them.

The participating boys and girls first had a cook-out lunch. Then they were divided into teams of four, with two boys and two girls on each team. They shot at novelty-type targets — one had paper plates on it, another had balloons, and one target was scored backwards, with the outside ring counting more points than the bull's eye. One of the favorite targets was one with a dummy propped in front of it with an apple on its head. Some of the boys had fun pretending that the dummies were their archery instructors; needless to say, their shooting improved rapidly!

There was also a round of relay shooting, as well as a round called the Round Robin round. In this round, the spectators are allowed to heckle the campers while they are shooting. After each time of shooting, the lowest scoring team is eliminated until only one team is left. Jim "Boomer" Markarian and Rick Stockhausen never ceased to amaze the crowd — they continued to shoot well, in spite of receiving the most heckling. (Maybe that's because the girls heckling them moved in closer). A short frisbee game followed the shooting, during which one camper was observed making plans for the roller-skating party that night (C.Y.?).

The campers attending the tournament were Chris Yardley, Oscar Shamamian, Jim McDonald, Peter Lindquist, Jeff Sengelmann, Eric Jensen, Dave Lindquist, Andy Lang, Rick Stockhausen, Chip Trayner, Peter Shaw, Dave Jackson, and Jim Markarian. Counselors were Mark Schiewetz, Jeff Morgan, Mark Sengelmann, and John Morr.

WRESTLING REPORT

On Monday evening, July 15th, the Maroons and Greys squared off in their annual wrestling contest, though the occasion proved to be less of a contest than hoped for. The Maroons looked good on paper, but even more impressive on the mat, collecting six pins and two decisions en route to a 42-6 thrashing of the Greys.

Dana Gregory collected the only Grey points with his handy first period pin of Doug Rechsteiner.

Thanks to Mike Standen, Bob Zechiel, Jeff Morgan, Candy Zechiel, Lorenzo Baker, and Steve Yale.

The Summaries follow:

KAWANHEE LITTLE LEAGUE

With the Kawanhee Little League season reaching the half-way mark, three teams, Le Rouge Hoz, Black Power, and Stylish Purple remain in good position to capture the two playoff spots. At the end of the season, the two teams with the best records will battle it out in a two out of three series for the pennant and camp title.

Le Rouge Hoz 19, EverGreens 16

League Leading Le Rouge Hoz hammered out 14 hits in a 19-16 clipping of the EverGreens. Dave (Itch) Erchinger cracked two doubles and two singles to knock in three runs in his most productive day as a Rouge Hoz.

Rich Seeley, the ace of the Hoz pitching corps, picked up his second win of the season, fanning 12. Rich is now the K.L.L. strikeout leader with 25 whiffs to his credit.

Frank "Bubs" DiGiacomo, returning after a three-for-three performance a week ago, managed to collect an RBI single in the Sunday contest.

The EverGreens kept it close with an eight run sixth inning. Jeff Luce, a nearby Farmington product, collected three hits including his first home run of the year. Unfortunately, it wasn't enough, as the EverGreens took their fourth consecutive drubbing of the year.

Black Power 27, EverGreens 5

It was a record-breaking bonanza at Button Park last Friday nite. Who can ever remember any baseball team giving up 27 runs in three innings (Besides G.R. Frank)? Rivalling the infamous 1970 Purple Lepidolites, the EverGreens managed their fifth consecutive defeat. They have only played five games.

There still might be hope for the EverGreens, however, Coach Tom West is working out a deal with Nurse Jo Stockhausen, who always has one or more of Tom's players up in the infirmary sucking on sore throat lozenges or drinking ginger ale. Injuries, it seems, have been keeping the Greens at less than full strength all year long.

The Black Power, inspired by the strength of Coach Mike Standen, zapped EverGreen pitching for 20 safties. Seven out of nine Black starters collected two hits or more. John "O" White and Tom Erchinger each had four hits for the day, and Louie San Juan banged out two triples.

Pitcher White fanned eight in three frames en route to his second victory of the season.

The Power moved to within a half game of first place, currently held by Le Rouge Hoz. The Green team, now 0-5, is four games back.

HANK AARON REPORT

Farm Sends Aging Ales to Basement

In a battle for sole possession of second place, McDonald's Farm put the Ales on the shelf in a lopsided 21-8 contest.

The Ales, coming off a heady 20-11 victory over the first-place Scotland Yardleys, fielded poorly and collected only nine hits in the game. Pitcher/captain saw his defense collapse around him as he allowed 8 unearned runs and 19 hits, without striking out a batter. Kent Wallingford was particularly effective against him, collecting four hits in five at bats, scoring four times and knocking a double. Mouse Chapman continued his impressive hitting with a perfect three-for-three day. Frank Finetto was fast as well, contributing a triple and two singles in the winning effort.

Dana Gregory and Boomer Markarian combined to go

five for five with a triple apiece. Boomer's triple might have been the year's first home run, but he wasn't quite swift enough and was cut down trying to reach the plate, which eluded his team all day.

Yardleys Do It Again

Tom West took another day off, and things looked dark for the Scotland Yardleys as they faced another game without their star pitcher. Last time they played without Tom, their interim pitchers allowed the otherwise hapless Yale's Ales their only victory.

This round, however, Captain Chris Yardley filled in for the absent moundman and turned in a brilliant performance, allowing only two earned runs and leading his team to an 11-8 victory.

It was a Yardley game all the way, as the score after six frames was a lopsided 11-4. But in the top of the seventh and final inning, the Farm surprised the Button Park crowd by getting tough and rallying to score four times. The last-second rally, highlighted by a Mark Schiewetz triple and a Doug Rechsteiner double, was not enough to beat the again surging Scotland Yardleys, who finally plugged the holes and won 11-8.

In Yardley's pitching debut, he allowed just eight hits, four of which came in the final inning. His team's defense proved porous, however, committing eight errors and nearly blowing the game. But, with strong performances from such Yardleys as Peter Leslie (three for four), Rick Stockhausen and Tom Evans (two for four) and Captain Yardley himself, who hit the first four-bagger of the Aaron season, the Yardleys raised their season mark to a strong 4-1.

KAWANHEE BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Big Shots and The Stars, both undefeated, played a really big game for sole possession of first place. Belskis's Big Shots won the game easily 64-42. The Big Shot himself led all scorers with 31 points. He was backed by Tim Keny, Mark "Bradley" Standen, and Fritz "The Cat" Monroe who had 12, 10, and 9 points respectively for the winners. Kent "Wally" Wallingford led the losers with 16 points. Mike "The Pearl" Standen and Pete Mykrantz had 14 and 12 points for the losers also.

Four days later, the Big Shots and the Stars went at it again before a sellout crowd at the Kawanhee Garden. Belskis's Big Shots won the rematch 56-50 to clinch a playoff spot. The game was a lot closer the second time around and it looked as if The Big Shots were in Big Trouble when Pete Belskis fouled out of the game with ten minutes remaining. But with The Big Shot coaching his team from the sidelines and his team playing super without him, they won the game by 6 points. Pete Belskis led all scorers with 31 points for the winners. Kent "Wally" Wallingford and Mike "The Pearl" Standen had 18 and 16 points for the losers.

Morgan's and Shevy's Shooters and the B.A.'s Bounders played an exciting game with the Bounders winning their first game of the year, 59-51. The Altmaier brothers combined for 40 points and the great play of Dave Alexander and Zeke had the Bounders in the lead most of the game. B.A. led all scorers for the winners with 35 points and was backed strongly by big Dave Alexander with 13 points. Mark Schiewetz led the losers with 21 points and he was backed by Jeff Morgan and Bako who had 12 points apiece.

KAWANHEE BASKETBALL LEAGUE JUNIORS

The Jackson Five and Stockhausen's Stockade played one of the best and most exciting games in K.B.L. Junior history. Dave Jackson scored a basket with eight seconds to go to win the game for his team 21-19. The game was close all the way and The Stockade were in the lead most of the game, but fell two points short as the final gun went off. Dave "we got the women" Jackson led all scorers for the winners with 13 points. Jim "Boomer" Markarian backed him up with six points. Tom Evans and Rick Stockhausen had nine and six points for the losers.

McDonald's Quarter-Pounders and the Jackson Five played a really big game with the winner moving into first place. The Jackson Five won the game 36-25 behind Boomer Markarian's 16 big points. He was backed by Dave Jackson and Dave Jordan who had eight and six points. Pete Van Leer and Jim McDonald led the losers with ten and nine points.

COUNSELOR SERIES

With a show of strength Saturday night, the JC's overpowered the SC's with fifteen hits to win 8-5 and pull within two games in the summer series. Without wasting any time, the JC's put together a rally in the first inning, starting with their first hitter, BA. In fact, the first out didn't come until their seventh batter hit a sacrifice fly. By the time the third out was made the JC's had scored five times. In their half of the first inning the SC's managed to push two runs across the plate when Mike Harrison reached first on an error and Pete Belskis hit a home run. After a scoreless second inning, the JC's added another run to make it 6-2. The SC's narrowed the lead in the fourth by scoring two more runs on three consecutive singles, and again in the sixth with one run on a walk, an error and a single. However, the JC's held them scoreless for the last three innings while adding two runs to their own score in the ninth to ice the cake and win it 8-5. This made the series score four to two in games.

Winning Pitcher—BA Altmaier (2-4)
Losing Pitcher—Zeke (4-2)
2b—Mike Standen (2)
HR—Pete Belskis

The JC's started out strong again Sunday night holding the SC's scoreless for the first five innings. Meanwhile, they scored two runs themselves, one in the second and one in the third. In the sixth frame, the SC's put together a two out rally that would have done little damage if Nick Gill had not slipped in the wet outfield allowing John Duncan to make it all the way to third, with two more runs to score. That made a total of three runs in the inning and gave the SC's the lead. However, they did not hold it for long. The JC's came right back in their half of the sixth to score two and take the lead again. Then the SC's exploded. In the next two innings they picked up nine hits and nine runs to go ahead thirteen to four. This became the final score of the game as they held the JC's scoreless for the last three innings.

PUNK FROM THE LOG

The Log is back to report on an eventful week that saw two Monhegan trips, an Androscoggin canoe trip, a Kawanhee-Kineowatha skating party, and John Aldrich streaking across Sunday Beach . . . Billy Proctor has given up water-skiing with the kit. Now he wants to go snow-skiing. He turned into a snow machine in chapel . . . only thing wrong was he turned out Ivory Snow instead of real stuff . . . If you don't know your way back from town, don't ask Steve Neri to guide you . . . he got lost leading a group from the road through the woods to the athletic field . . . This week's Infirmary Award goes to Tom Wallace . . . on successive days he had a sore throat, an upset stomach, and an almost-broken finger . . . John Morr was on the first Monhegan trip — just barely . . . had to be awakened twice before he got up . . . The trip to the Island was a little rough . . . 80% of the group got seasick . . . That was O.K. with B.A., who didn't get seasick. He got four and a half sandwiches for lunch. They don't call him the garbage can for nothing . . . The first Kawanhee-Kineowatha skating party was a disappointment for some . . . Boomer allowed as how it was a bummer that the girls could only stay until 9:30 . . . he found time to skate with four different girls, though . . . Big John, Jo, and Amy made a special guest appearance and brought down the house with some dazzling skating . . . One girl attracted a lot of attention among the counselors. Seems one even got to skate with her all evening . . . See John Duncan for the information . . . It was a big week for romance. Ken Yavis and Rick Stockhausen wanted to move into Hawk Lodge after meeting Mike Harrison and David Mitchell's sisters . . . Ken and Rick had to be dragged away from the girls for vespers . . . Rick left for Monhegan giving Ken instructions to tell the girls all about him . . . He returned as a prosecuting attorney questioning Dave Mitchell about his sister . . . So much happened on the second Monhegan Trip that the Log is still unsure of the details . . . Dave Jackson reportedly said to someone from the first trip, "You may have caught the fish, but we got the women," . . . Peter "Flower Child" Van Leer, was seen observing an island custom and throwing flowers into the water to ensure his return. Van Leer is a sly one, he is . . . John "I'll do it myself" Duncan went to see nurse Jo about a blister on his foot. It suddenly improved when he saw the needle she intended to use to puncture it. "I'll do it myself" he bravely suggested. No such luck. Jo has a steady hand . . . Weary after his ordeal, John recovered to lead the Androscoggin canoe trip . . . The first group down the river saw Boomer "Androscoggin" Markarian and Scott "White Water" McMinn make it through all the rapids successfully only to tip over in calm water . . . Pete Mykrantz climbed Mt. Washington on his day off . . . he must have expected to play tennis on top; all he wore were his sneakers, shorts, and tennis sweater . . . Big John had a surprise when he climbed into bed one night . . . bed was full of salt . . . When it's your turn to give grace before a meal, check with John Morr. He may interrupt you with a last-minute announcement. This week's "It must be nice" award goes to Nick Gill . . . due to cunning planning, trips, and days off, he only worked two periods all week! . . . The Log will return, for the fun of it.

The following material is true, and the names have not been changed to protect the innocent, the guilty, or anyone else . . . Bates introduced the game warden at Sunday night vespers, and talked longer than the warden . . . Rev. McCleave started off the week on a groggy note and tried to shave with Crest . . . romance was still here this week . . . Rick Stockhausen was again leading the way . . . he cunningly placed the scorekeeper between himself and three girls in an attempt to decoy the Log. However, the Log was not so easily fooled, and noticed that Rick had plenty of opportunity for talking to the girls . . . Chris Yardley got into the act this week . . . he went to Kineo for the annual archery day, but he did a little more, taking the time to pick out a girl to join him at the skating party later . . . Chris is a man of many talents; later in the week he was seen playing doubles tennis with three other girls . . . John Ireland has achieved something of a record . . . in the past week he has managed to spend just two days with his lodge . . . they went to Monhegan while he stayed in camp. Then he went on the first Chain of Ponds trip and they stayed in camp. Then they went on the second trip, and he stayed in camp! . . . Rumor has it that the kids didn't recognize him when they saw him again . . . However, the Log learned that the motive was not as altruistic as it appeared . . . among Mike's mail were several packages from home with candy inside! . . . David Oster won the "Lost and Found" award this week. A pair of his pants were found on Chain of Ponds even though he was in camp . . . Nick Gill wins the "Iron Stomach" award for the week, eating a half-pound of M & M's in six minutes . . . Several campers win for "Quotes of the Week" . . . John Cohen reported canker sores on his feet . . . Mark Brzezinski asked O.J. Altmaier to teach him some army . . . Mark Bell, after hearing that Mark Standen wasn't eating any hamburgers on cook-out day, accused him of being a veterinarian . . . Frank DiGiacomo thought a fortnight was a new kind of punishment — a night in the fort . . . This week's "It Must Be Nice" award goes to Scott "Minimum" McMinn. Supposedly leading the second Chain-of-Ponds trip, he spent one afternoon sleeping in his tent while everyone else canoed the Horseshoe River . . . Later he sat in the middle of a canoe and made two campers paddle him five miles to the dam. It Must Be Nice! . . . The Log will be back.
