Maroons Snatch Victory from Greys

Summer '76 ended with a last minute reversal for the third year in a row. Mark Schiewetz's Grey team had been ahead all summer, but when the fifth week totals were revealed, the Maroons seemed to be closing the gap. The score was Greys 13,860 to Maroons 13,604. The Maroon team continued to amass points, helped considerably by 5 out of the 6 new Junior Maine Guides. The season's final score was Maroons 39,414 to Greys 37,476. His victorious team joyfully threw Frank Finetto in the lake.

To culminate one of the rainiest summers on record, Hurricane Belle spun herself alond the New England coast, lashing us with tailwinds and even more rain. Sunny days were special this season, being few and far between. The final awards ceremony, barely under way, was hurriedly moved indoors when yet another storm struck. Many outstanding achievers were honored, with Doug Sheppard winning the greatest improvement award in both swimming and physical improvement. Yasser Alwan earned the greatest improvement in athletics award.

In spite of the rain, though, it was a summer of high point scorers; John White led the way with a total of 1651. It was a summer of extravaganzas, beginning with Tom Taylor's Bicentennial 4th of July and ending with Bill Yardley's "Mr. America" pageant. It was a summer for making new friends, achieving new skills, learning, growing, and enjoying.

In four months we will light our candles for Chief Kawanhee; in ten months most of us will meet again here on his shores and pathways.

DEERS TRAVEL IN UNIQUE WAYS

-by Tom Taylor-

As part of the Bicentennial Observance, the Deer Lodge during the past two weeks has been traveling around by old-fashioned means. On Wednesday, July 28th, the Deer Lodge left on its fourth annual trek to the head of the lake for an overnight on board the sailing fleet of the Kawanhee Yacht Club. The winds were gale force from the Gap, and some thoughts of postponing the trip did occur. However, the lodge to a man decided to brave the stiff winds and white caps. Keith Erf skippered the Sea Hawk with Scott Cress, Duncan Parrish, and Paul Summers as crew members. Whitney Durell, Rex Lynne, Scott Cramer, and Bill Miller sailed in the Sea Gull with Tom Taylor. Second Mate Peter Carnahan and Doug Colescott mastered the art of heavy weather sailing in a tech and amazed everyone by bringing their vessel safely to the head of the lake without capsizing or even getting their gear very wet. Jonathan Lupfer sailed up with First Mate candidate and Sailing Department assistant Mack Bell.

The trip up was exciting and full of thrills. The five mile trip against the wind took us only about 2½ hours. After reaching our sheltered anchorage at the head of the lake, we swam and enjoyed the warm sunshine, stretched out on the Carribean blue decks to improve our tans. Sandwiches, carrots, and cookies made a welcome supper, and then we swam some more, told stories and sang until the sun went down. As the lights of the cabins around the lake began to gleam, we began a peaceful night, completely exhausted from the rigors of the day and life aboard ship. Most of the boys had never before slept overnight on a sailing vessel, and Rex Lynne expressed their feelings, when, just before falling asleep he murmured, "This is far out!"

The next morning we awoke to the purr of the G.R. ski boat as Ferd materialized out of the early morning fog to retrieve Keith Erf who had to return to camp early to go on a trip. After the departure of the ski boat, the rest of us broke camp, packed up our sleeping bags, and fixed breakfast of cereal and doughnuts. (Because we cannot have fires on the boats, our meals are specially designed so that we do not have to cook.)

After breakfast, the fleet hoisted sails, weighed anchors, and started on the return trip to Camp. Had we had the gale winds of the day before, we would have been able to run down to Camp in about half an hour; however, we were not that lucky, and the light, foggy breeze that we had awakened to died away completely, leaving a glorious, sunny, warm morning which was perfect for anything and everything except...sailing. We set all possible sail, even using spinnakers with jibs on beam reach to catch every possible puff. The swimmers were also occasionally busy pulling and towing the boats. Finally, however, after about four hours of drifting above Bowley Rock, John Marbach finally appeared in the Launch to tow us back just in time for the noon meal. Despite the gales and then complete calm (situations which seem to have characterized this summer's winds--either too strong or too light for good sailing), the boys and counselors had a great time. We spent a total of 23 hours on the boats, and we had savored the thrills (heavy winds and a view of lights around the lake at night) as well as the frustrations (dead calms) of sailors who are dependant so much on the whims of nature.

On Saturday, August 7th, the Deer Lodge was off again. This time it was a trip up a mountain. But more than that, it was a trip up a mountian on an old-fashioned steam train. And even more than that, it was a trip up Mount Washington on the famed Cog Railway.

These old steam trains brought to life a nostalgic period of our country's past when the iron horse was king in the field of transportation. Some of the boys found out what it was like to get a coal cinder in an eye. The scream of

SIX BECOME JR. MAINE GUIDES

The Junior Maine Guide program, for boys 14 and older, represents high achievement in campcraft skills. In order to earn this distinction, boys are tested at Lake Mooselookmeguntic, where they select and develop their own campsites in virgin wilderness. In four days, they must pass tests in 20 areas, including axemanship, canoe repair, wet and dry fire building, topographical mapping, personal shelters, compass work, first aid, and cooking. These are grueling tests and not often all passed on the first try.

This summer, under the direction of Ralph Tice and John Duncan, twelve boys undertook the J.M.G. program, and an unprecedented total of six succeeded. The new Junior Maine Guides are John Bell, Charles Ward, Peter Seeley, Eric Jensen, John White, and Martin Huguley.

THE KENNEBEC CANOE TRIP

-by Scott McMinn-

The Kennebec River is a white water river in northwestern Maine that has rapids of every description. Near it headwaters, the current is so rough that the river can be negotiated only by raft, or by an expert kayaker. As the river makes its way south, the rapids lose their intensity, and the stretch that Kawanhee canoes is mostly class 1 and 2 rips.

The Kennebec has long been used to float pulpwood down from the forests to the paper mills, and in years past these logs have proven as much of a challenge to paddle through as the river itself. This year, however, our stretch of the river was not being used by the loggers, although the water (controlled by a dam upstream) was at log-floating height. This meant that we had a fast current, and lots of rapids, but no logs to paddle through and very few rocks close enough to the surface to create a problem.

The Kennebec trip is a one day trip. We take the Bouncing Buggy, canoes behind, up through the mountains to the Kennebec, and then run down a four mile stretch of river. Actual canoeing time is about forty-five minutes, and then we pick up the canoes and do it all over again, making three or four runs in a day. The final run takes us another four miles down to where the Appalachian Trail crosses the river, and there we pull out and head for home. It is an enjoyable trip, and perfect for the boy who has no previous white water experience. The canoeing is challenging, but not dangerous, and since we do not actually carry any gear with us in the canoes, if you should happen to hit a stretch of rapids wrong--no problem. You can just empty the canoe out on shore and keep on going.

This year, we ran two Kennebec trips, and got thirty boys down the river. Everyone had a good time, and most picked up white water experience that will be invaluable to them on future, more difficult runs. Meanwhile, the Kennebec belongs to the logs again.

the steam whistle also was a unique sound that these boys had never heard.

We were not blessed with good weather, but somehow the foggy clouds added to the mystery of the old mountain and the unrealness of our trip up it on these hundred-year old trains. On the way up, the steepest grade occurs on a trestle known as Jacob's Ladder. On this 37.41% grade we had fun trying to stand vertically in the train car, one end of which was 14 feet higher than the other. Whitney Durell held his instamatic camera from the end of its strap, and it appeared to be canting out at a strange angle as if some strange force was pulling on it. It was only the force of gravity, and it was merely our own senses which were disoriented by the severity of the incline.

On the summit of Washington, we looked around the Summit House and visited the new Museum which is run by the Mount Washington Observatory. (Dr. Henry Blau, father of Kawanheeans Peter and Henry Blau, is the Scientific Director of the Mount Washington Observatory.) After a half hour on the summit, we boarded the train for the trip back down the slopes of Mount Washington. When we got down, we boarded the cars for a trip down Crawford Notch and to a Dairy Queen in Glen, New Hampshire. Then we returned to Camp in time for supper.

The boys in the Deer Lodge are: Peter Carnahan, Doug Colescott, Scott Cramer, Scott Cress, Whitney Durell, Jonanthan Lupfer, Rex Lynne, Bill Miller, Duncan Parrish, and Paul Summers. The counselors are Tom Taylor and Keith Erf with Martin Huguley as Master Camper in Residence.

BEAR LODGE TAKES TRIP TO MT. DESERT ISLAND

On August 3rd, Bear Lodge took a three-day excursion to Mt. Desert Island. The lodge was fortunate to have the opportunity to camp on Tom Newbold's secluded waterfront property. The campers were thankful to Mr. Newbold--besides offering the camp use of his woods, he generously provided the lodge with lobsters for dinner.

On the second day we went to Acadia National Park. Most of our time was spent at Sand Beach. The atmosphere was perfect--a cloudless sky, a finely sanded beach overlooking rocky cliffs, and an ice-cold ocean. The opposite sex swarmed on the beach--a sight which the boys had missed while at camp. When we were finally able to drag the boys away from this paradise, we drove up Cadillac Mountain, where we had a fantastic view of the island.

On the last day, we drove to the quaint town of Bar Harbor. The campers enjoyed strolling through its many shops.

Before returning to camp, we stopped at the go-cart track. The go-cart rides, from the camper's perspective, were the highlight of the trip. The boys got great pleasure from the rides because they were able to gang up on their counselors. Tom Newbold ran Jim Balakian and Jeff Morgan off the track into a mud puddle, which resulted in two dirty faces.

Campers that made the trip were: Pedro Rubio, John Detrick, Steve Colescott, Ricardo Fuster, Henry Blau, John Tulloss, Tom Newbold, Pierre Morissette, Carlos Margarida, Jeff Williams, Don Klingbeil, and Jim Haas. The counselors were Kirk Neiswander, Jeff Morgan, and Jim Balakian.

RIFLE RANGE HOSTS TOURNEY

-by Chip Morris-

Thanks to Bruce Birch's new CB radio, targets were acquired in time for the 1976 Kawanhee Rifle Tournament July 30 and 31. Ready on the line were 47 Kawanheeans shooting for team and individual honors. The tournament was divided into three major and four minor categories. Each boy shot a special five bulls-eye match target, trying for a top score of 100 points in ten shots. Tournament results were as follows:

HOT SHOTS HAVE TOURNAMENT

-by Chip Morris-

Most weeks at the campfires, some boys received the recognition of being a "hot shot", meaning exceptionally high scores on targets during that week. Awards were made according to position, based on 48 (or better) for prone, 47 for sitting, 46 for kneeling and 45 for standing (for which nobody qualified).

The "hot shots" were to compete against each other in order to determine the best in camp. Although the weather took a turn for the worse (sunshine!) and some of the shooters were distracted by other activities, the tournament was successful in singling out the following boys:

FLAMES WIN IT ALL

The first K.B.L. Midget Championship game was played between Fleming's Flying Flames and Chakmak's Big Macs. The teams played twice during the regular season and each team won a close game. The championship game was played before a packed crowd at Kawanhee Garden. The game was close all the way and the Big Macs led most of the time. It wasn't until Rex Lynne scored late in the game that the Flames took the lead for the first time. But once they had it, they held on to it and won a very close game 12-11 to win the championship of the K.B.L.Midget League.

TUNA EATS UP METRO

Charlie's Tuna and Morissette's Metro met in the championship game for the coveted Shorty Wetherbee Memorial Trophy. Tuna had been beating every team in sight during the regular season and was heavily favored in the championship game. The Metro really gave Tuna a scare in the first half and led at halftime, 12-8. But Pierre Morissette fouled out late in the first half and that really sparked Tuna in the second half. The Tuna himself, Charlie Abbott, played a really good second half and led his team to victory, 36-17 for the World Championship of the K.B.L. Junior.

THE BOUNDERS ARE BACK

The B.A. Bounders pulled one of the biggest upsets in championship history by beating the favorite Hoopers in a 2 out of 3 championship series. It was the Bounders third championship since '71. The Hoopers won the first game in the series; the Bounders came back and won the last two games to win the coveted Jim Duffey Memorial Trophy as the world champions of the K.B.L. for 1976. The Bounders owe their success to great team togetherness on the court, and an exhibition game against the Kawanhee Cuties (a super girls' team).

KAWANHEE LITTLE LEAGUE REPORT

K.L.L. WIND-UP

The Kawanhee Little League ended up this year with the Black Magic facing the Green Monster in a best of three World Series on Chip Button Memorial Field. Don Long's Black Magic did the trick twice with a two game sweep of the series, 6-4 in the first game and 12-6 in the second.

Erich Sengelmann, Black pitcher, starred in the first game with a three hitter, but Rex Lynne of the Green was equally tough in a losing effort. Lynne was victimized by a couple of crucial Monster errors which allowed two runs to score, setting the stage for the Green's downfall.

Jon Morgan and Brian Birch were also stars for the Black as Morgan's two run double and Birch's two hits and two runs scored figured heavily in the Black victory.

In the second and final game of the year the Green showed spirit by jumping out quickly to a 2-0 lead, but they could not silence the Black Magic bats for long. Almost the entire Black team seemed to hit the ball, and before they were through they had scored 12 runs and swept the series. Erich Sengelmann and Brian Birch were chosen Most Valuable Players of the series and Rex Lynne was chosen M.V.P. for the entire season. Congratulations must go to the Black for their fine team effort and spirit all year. They truly lived up to a champion's standard.

Congratulations must also go to the rest of the teams and coaches, The Green , Blue, and Orange for their fine team spirit and sportsmanship throughout the season. It truly was a very competitive league this season with each team never out of the playoff picture until the last week.

We are looking forward to next year already, for we know the excitement generated by the players themselves cannot help but rub off on us coaches and fans of Kawanhee Little League baseball.

Yours in Kawanhee,
Pete Belskis

HANK AARON LEAGUE REPORT

ALL-STARS SHINE AS MACPHAIL FAILS

It is tradition in the Hank Aaron League for the champion team, once it has been determined, to play a final game against the all-stars of the two runners up. This season, the Navy of Scott MacPhail took its championship squad to the field with a 4-2 record to face the best of Peter Seeley's Postur-Pedics and Mack Bell's System, who finished 3-3 and 2-4, respectively.

It was a close game all the way, indicative of the many talented Aaron players who graced Button Field this year. The All-Stars, home team, drew first blood in the bottom of the first inning, as Jim McDonald and Chris Yardley knocked back-to-back doubles to put a run across.

The Navy came back with a vengeance in the top of the second, however. They opened the inning with four straight hits; a triple by Scott Hadley, a single by MacPhail, another three base hit by Bob Smith, and a single by Peter Shamamian, scoring three times and taking a two run lead. But the All-Stars tied it up in the bottom of the third with three doubles; one by Andy "A Train" Trayner to lead off the inning, and shots by Mack Bell and Jim McDonald (his second of the day) after Dave Van Houten popped out. The Navy was unable to score in the fourth and fifth frames, and in the bottom of the fifth the All-Stars grabbed the lead with a run scored largely by virtue of two Navy errors.

So the Navy went into the top of the sixth and final frame needing a run to tie and two to go ahead. Tom Watkins led things off with a single, followed by Rick Morr who did the same. John Altmaier then hit a shot to McDonald in center, who made the play and fired to first, catching Rick Morr off guard for the double play. So with two outs and tying run on third, Scott Hadley stepped to the plate. Hadley led the circuit with an .813 average, and the All-Stars, fearing his bat, gave him an intentional pass to bring up captain MacPhail, who singled across the tying run. Then Bob Smith doubled to bring across both MacPhail and Hadley, and the Navy owned a 6-4 lead.

But the All-Stars were not called that for nothing. Chris Yardley led off the final All-Star frame with a single, and scored on Pete Seeley's double. Then Bryan Day tied it up with another double, scoring Seeley. And, still with nobody out, John White ended it all with a single that brought Day across as the winning run.

All-Star pitchers combined to hold the Navy to eight hits, while the Stars netted eleven. MacPhail and Bob Smith combined to collect half of the Navy hits, with two apiece, while McDonald, Yardley, and Day enjoyed two hit afternoons for the All-Stars. Andy Trayner took the win for the All-Stars, while MacPhail was the losing Navy pitcher.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING IN WELD

-by Ed Chace-

Camp Kawanhee is ideally situated on beautiful Lake Webb. Across the lake from camp, one may see the Tumbledown Mountains. To the right of the Gap, they are Tumbledown, Little Jackson, Big Jackson, and Blueberry. Crater Lake nestles among Tumbledown's four peaks.

Little Jackson is higher than Tumbledown. Its summit is clear of trees, an ancient fire having burned them off. Among the curiosities of Little Jackson are a "shelf" spring, and a large open cave made by shifting of a huge block of rock. Its summit overlooks Tumbledown and Crater Lake.

Big Jackson's summit is completely wooded and the hiker who ventures up it encounters old blow-down and pants-tearing spruce forests. There are several good ledges with views above the col between Little and Big Jackson's summit.

Hikers usually use the Parker Ridge Trail up over easy ledges from the camping area. The large lean-to at the base is the property of the Boy Scouts. From the Byron Gap, the Loop-Chimney Trail goes north to a huge rocky ledge from which the Chimney Trail moves west and the Loop east. The Chimney is spectacular, but should be used only under experienced leadership. It has loose, dislodgeable stones which can cause serious injury. The Loop winds over and under large boulders making a "Bear's Cave", a "Fat Man's Misery", and other picturesque places.

CHIEF KAWANHEE ORDER OF THE ARROW

-by Ed Choce-

This award goes to men or women who have given outstanding service to Kawanhee. Established in 1972, it first went to George R. Frank, former director and co-founder with his brother Raymond C. Frank. No one deserved the award more than he.

In 1973 the award went to Leonard Taylor, head chef, a man of sterling character, extreme loyalty, and top achievement. He had a deep personal interest in boys. That summer we had two young campers who were born without legs, and one had only one usable hand. Yet they, with these seeming insuperable handicaps, did everything; gathering wood, building fires, and one day cooked a stew. One of the boys wanted to share the stew with Leonard; I well remember Leonard standing in the kitchen, holding the lad and eating the stew, with tears streaming down his cheeks.

Last year the Order of the Arrow went to a man without whom Kawanhee could not exist. There is no phase of camping which he cannot or will not do. He has brought uncounted numbers of new braves and sachems to Kawanhee. He has given of himself beyond any call of contract or duty. I have never known Herb to say anything derogatory about anyone, yet he is a martinet for finishing the job. He expects the same standards of character and performance from others that he demands of himself.

This year the Order of the Arrow goes to a man whom too few really know. Almost single-handed he has bridged the hiatus between what Kawanhee was and what it will become. He listens, he acts, though it sometimes cuts him to the core to say, "no". No years could be more difficult than years of transition, yet Kawanhee opened with one of its largest enrollments this year. Though he cannot spend the whole summer here, he gives 101% of himself, so to Walter Estabrook goes Kawanhee's Order of the Arrow for 1976.

MR. AMERICA TAKES KAWANHEE BY STORM

One of the most hilarious events ever to take place at Kawanhee was the "Mr. America" pageant. The brainchild of resident humorist Bill Yarcley, the two-night event was billed as a production of Kawanhee All-in-Fun Bizarre Enterprises. And bizarre it was! The Rec Hall was transformed into a lavish stage setting, complete with a runway for the candidates; the camp band performed in the "pit" while the tuxedo-ed Peter "Bert Parks" van den Honert sang; in short, we had all the pomp and pageantry attending the other contest in Atlantic City.

Judges were Polly "Honey" van den Honert, Patti "Kutie" Knote, Joanne "Elegant" Ellis, and Beth "Ee-ooo" Elliott. Introduced first were those sophisticated Mr. Americas from previous years: Bates, with World War I helmet and chain saw, artichoke farmer Herb Birch, southern gent Walter Estabrook, Bruce "Lone Ranger" Birch and Brian "Tonto" Birch, hornpipe-dancer Tom Taylor, and playboy Tim Williams.

Then came the long-awaited entry of the candidates in the swimsuit competition. Bribes were offered to the judges--money, flowers, kisses--all to no avail the minute Celio "Gorgeous" Gonzalez appeared. He made his bid with a dazzling show of weight-lifting, and won over such tough opponents as David "Boobsie" Boothby (rated X) and Leigh "Oo-eee" Oliva (whose entrance in sedan chair was a show-stopper!) The other candidates were Cameron "Beautiful" Bartlett, Tim "Darling" Duncan, Drew "Dearie" Detrick, Lars "Juicy" Jensen, Doug "Kissable" Colescott, Carter "Macho" Messick, Andy "Terrific" Trayner, Albert "Nudie" Natelli, Henry "Boopsie" Blau, Dave "Erotic" Evans, and Miguel "Nifty" Nunez.

The first evening closed with a "chaotic" chorus line, the Raunchy Rockettes, who prefer to remain nameless. The second evening's program featured talent competition in the form of games for the contestants, a startling commercial, a jug band, and a kiss-the-judge contest (with whole-hearted participation by all), and the final announcement of the winner, Celio Gonzalez--Kawanhee's Mr. America, 1976!
