Presidential Climbers Buck Wind and Fog

The annual Kawanhee pilgrimage over the Presidential Range left Monday morning, August 13, under the leadership of Ed Chace and Stu Klapp, with the following campers making up the party: P. Gelpi, A. Hoster, T. Krumm, R. Robinson, R. Wollam, S. Dorrance, D. Gardner, D. Shea, F. Smith, D. LaRue, A. Nevai, S. Savage, W. Greenwood, W. Chipman and J. Pethick. Skipper Bates was at the wheel of the camp bus as the party moved west to meet the New Hampshire mountains head on.

This year the route of the party was reversed, starting at Pinkham Notch rather than the Ravine House. At 11:30 A.M. Bates left the party at the A. M. C. Clubhouse where the climbers donned their knapsacks and started the long haul up the trail to Tuckerman Ravine and the famous Headwall. After a brief stay at the falls, the real ascent began.

At the Hermit Lakes Shelters the boys stopped to catch the magnificence of the Headwall on their films. At 2:15 P.M. they arrived at the base of the Headwall where the famous Snowbridge is found in the spring. Here they found a huge deposit of snow and ice still intact after almost two months of summer. The novelty of throwing snowballs in August didn't wear off for quite a while until Ed Chace blew the whistle to start the group up the Headwall.

The boys were astonished to find that they had reached the top of the Headwall in an elapsed time of three hours and thirty minutes from Pinkham Notch. This time equals the guidebook time. The views were marvelous all the way.

About this time Bill Greenwood's pack strap broke. He was using one of the BSA packs which invariably go to pieces on trips. John Pethick saved the day by taking all Bill's gear in his pack, turning down Bill's frantic clamor, "Let me carry it, John; please, John!" (Sometime this writer hopes there will be a law against BSA packs. While he favors heartily the BSA movement, he has a wholesome disgust for their packs, having figured in emergencies like this one over a period of nine years.)

At 4:00 P.M. the Kawanhee group arrived at the Lake of the Clouds Hut happy and ready for supper. The members of the party had viewed with some awe the hut boys who were trudging down from the summit of Mount Washington bearing huge loads of food on packracks. After a grand turkey dinner almost all of the group, headed by Stu Klapp, went up Mount Monroe which faces the Hut. They made a tour of the two peaks. The few who remained made trail lunches for the next day.

The next morning dawned wet and miserable, accompanied by a 65-mile an hour breeze. Ed Chace declared that it came from the Northwest and hence that it meant good weather. No one else shared his optimism.

The breakfast was excellent. At 8:30 A.M. the group started up the trail to the summit of Mount Washington which they could not see. Dave LaRue even doubted that it was there. In one hour, through dense fog which galloped past at 65 miles an hour, the boys arrived at the summit. The view was marvelous! Standing a foot and a half from the Summit House, one could see it pretty well. That was the extent of the view. Some of the boys groped their way to the Weather Bureau and a few looked closely at the Cog Railway trains which puffed in and out of the depot. One could not see them without looking closely. The rest wrote postcards to friends and relatives. Andy Nevai wrote one to himself at camp. He said that he wanted some mail when he returned.

At 11:00 A.M. the party started on the long haul over the tops to Madison Huts. As the climbers left the hotel they were met with a wind which nearly blew them all the way across the Great Gulf. After bucking the wind, the fog and inertia until 12:20 P.M. they were rewarded by clearing skies. It was then remembered that someone had predicted that this would occur. They celebrated by eating lunch beside the peaks of Mount Clay where they nestled behind rocks and under bushes.

The sky cleared more and more as the boys moved toward Mount Jefferson, but not enough to make anyone want to brave the cold wind to climb it. Adams was a different matter. Scorning a democratic vote, Ed Chace started up the Loop to the summit of Mount Adams, the second highest peak in the Presidential Range. It was so easy going up that Bill Greenwood was heard to remark, "Gee, this is soft."

The summit of Adams is the high spot of any Presidential trip. A towering cone, it affords a magnificent view in every direction, especially toward Washington across the Great Gulf. The boys reached the summit at 3:30 P.M. and clung to the rocks as the wind buffeted them. It was cold, but the view was one to remember for years. Numbed fingers worked the shutters of cameras.

Then came the steep descent which was not even remotely like the ascent. It was steep, it was rocky, it was windy, it was down and then down! Greenwood said nothing audible. With but one rest the party arrived at the Madison Springs Hut at 4:10 P.M. The time from Washington had been four hours and fifty-five minutes.

Several girls' camps arrived after the Kawanhee party. Notably in the minds of some Kawanhees was the group from Camp Acadia, Casco Bay, Maine. Just why no one can tell! After a grand ham dinner, Stu Klapp directed a party of the smaller members up Mount Madison through the winds. The rest made trail lunches and, being experienced in such matters — as the result of one attempt at the Lakes of the Clouds — they showed the girls how trail lunches should be made. Their instruction was good.

Morning dawned dull and rainy. More wind swept through the Adams-Madison Pass and with it some of the most beautiful fog which Stu Klapp, so he said, had seen since he finished Freshman English at Ohio State. Rush Robinson said that he did not know what was meant by Stu's remark. Stu replied that if Rush ever attended O.S.U. he would understand.

The boys assisted the girls to prepare for their departure following a fine breakfast of cereal, fruit and blueberry pancakes. The Kawanhee party had but a three-hour trek to the Ravine House in prospect and so didn't leave until 10:55 A.M. Several canasta and bridge games enlivened the morning.

The day was still wet and the fog was still there when the Kawanhee hikers left by way of the Valley Trail for the Ravine House. The record down this trail is thirty minutes, but no one of the Kawanheecans believes that anyone could descend by that trail any faster than they did. With but one stop — a half hour by a spring — they reached the Ravine House under a beautiful sky full of sun and flying clouds at 1:40 P.M. Bates, at the helm of the camp bus, arrived a scant ten minutes later to carry the boys back to camp.

Thus the 1956 Presidential trip came to an end. Despite the bad weather Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, all felt that the trip had been a tremendous success and that the mountains named for Presidents Washington, Monroe, Jefferson, Adams and Madison were among the most spectacular and wonderful anywhere. It is certain that, throughout the winter, photographs and memory pictures will bring back the excitement and the fun of Kawanhee's 1956 Presidential trip.

Outpost Closes: Tournaments to the Fore

In addition to the Presidential expedition and a mineral trip conducted by Mr. Dexter on Thursday, August 16, the week marked the rounding-out of a successful season at the Outpost Camp. With Mr. Birch, Uncle Charley Long and Jack Allen serving as the Outpost's staff, three two-lodge groups paid the Swift River camp overlapping visits of two days and one night each. The Eagles and Falcons with Bob Gowan spent Monday and Tuesday, August 13 and 14, in the Outpost; the Pine Trees and the Hawks with Chuck Kirkpatrick were there for Tuesday and Wednesday; and the Deer and Birch with Bob Mathews enjoyed the final session Wednesday and Thursday. On Friday Herb Birch and Bates dismantled the Outpost and conveyed the tents and other equipment back to Kawanhee for winter storage.

The winding-up process was also in full swing in Kawanhee itself. Counselors bombarded the dining hall with announcements. Preprandial recitations of the lists of those who were to meet whom where — and why — reached such magnitude that the meals themselves seemed by comparison little more than refreshments served after the ordeal. Moments of relaxation, however, were still to be found. The movies on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings brought forth Disney's classic cartoon, The Three Little Pigs, and a cops-and-robbers item, Undercover Agent. Spectator sports picked with the opening of the Wrestling tournament Thursday morning when a very vocal audience gathered to see D. Fung take the first match in the 55 lb. class. Simultaneously the Tennis tournaments moved into the finals. Tally Krumm took the Senior title from R. Guthrie, 6-1, 6-1, and Tod Tibbals nabbed the Junior Counselor top spot from Tony Hirsch, 6-0, 6-0. With all of this activity the weather played ball. While the elements did ring in a sharp temperature change or two, ranging from the cold snappy morning of Thursday to Saturday's warm, muggy afternoon, rain was considerably restricted to a few showers at night.

On August 16, the staff received reinforcement for the season's final stretch with the arrival of Fred Hoster. He spent the first part of the summer at his home in Columbus on a construction job. Fred had an uninterrupted Kawanhee career from 1948 through 1955, serving last year as a Junior Counselor and as Captain of the triumphant Maroon team.

Skits Give Harvard Another Workout

Ohio State Strikes Again, or, Harvard Started Something, might well have been the title for the bill of lodge skits and instrumental numbers presented in the Rec Hall Friday evening, August 17, for the "dramatic conflict" of the program stemmed entirely from the verbose inter-collegiate argument provoked the previous week by Mike Smith. In the end Fair Harvard was certainly outnumbered — whether or not she was also outwitted remains a matter of unregenerate partisan taste!

Spearheading the O.S.U. attack were the Crows and Herb Yenser. Their "satire" showed three slices of Harvard life which Omnibus missed completely. The cream of the jest was undoubtedly to be found in the intimate dormitory scene featuring coyly costumed Sam Davis, Rush Robinson and Ken Wheeler, but the most striking — to put it mildly — characterization was that of G. Lohnes as Harvard student M. Smith in the very remarkable class of Prof. S. Dorrance.

Harvard was also vaguely blamed for the Lynx Lodge skit, entitled Sob, Sob, Sob, although the exact connection was difficult to detect. This act appeared to be built on a novel dramatic concept equating deep emotion and knee bends, so there was actually more bobbin' than sobbin'. It did, however, afford an appreciative audience the opportunity of witnessing J. Alexander's well upholstered performance as "Ma", ably supported by D. Beggs, C. Fowler and C. Unckrich.

The Falcon presentation, Victor Rings the Belle, was billed as an "old fashioned melodrama", evidently because it did not subscribe to the current vogue for planting tacks in some well known seat of learning. Tony Hirsch read the narrative and the story was acted out in pantomime by the Falcons, most notably by Dave Dunnick as the dashing hero, Brad Conner as the fair heroine, and Mark Follansbee as the dastardly villain. The large "atmospheric" part of the Pump was capably filled by Bill Putt, although his silence seemed 'way out of the character of a pump according to Kawanhee experience.

The Orchestra and the "Combo" sustained the musical end of the program. The latter's new offering was In the Groove, a title with a built-in comment on the performance, and the group gave Ach der lieber Augustin another going-over. The evening's high point of genuine enjoyment was supplied by guest star Hal Myers' drum lesson. In actuality, no one may have learned much about beating the skins, but the jivin' parson certainly had them kidded into thinking that they were learning it all, as long as he kept pounding his traps and his gums.

Greys Scuttle Maroons in Final Meet

Coming from behind, the Grey Team romped away with the water meet of Saturday, August 18, by the impressive score of 158 to 94. Not only was this the final meet of the summer, it was also the first complete aquatic program which the elements allowed Kawanhee to enjoy this season. Boating events could be freely alternated with the usual swimming and diving contests, and the War Canoe race resumed its traditional importance as the decisive factor in the score.

The Maroons took off to a flying start by winning the heavily scored (20-0) Combination Relay for Seniors, Junior A's and Junior B's. This motley event began with a rowboat race to the end of Pine Point, continued with two stretches of running (from the Point to the Crows' Nest, and from there to the swimming area) and concluded with three laps of swimming between the docks. The Greys, G. Johnson and R. Roberts, took command of the running but, by the second lap of swimming, D. Gardner had built up a lead which the Maroons carried through to the end of the relay.

For the next five events the Greys commanded the canoeing and the Maroons won the swimming to put the score, at the end of the 6th event, at 44-42 in favor of the Maroons. The 7th contest, the Junior B Balloon race, proved to be the turning point of the afternoon. Bill Putt, a Grey, came in handily at the head of a large field of huffing, puffing, balloon-busting Juniors to set the score at 54-50 for his team. This advantage the Greys quickly nailed down by grabbing the ten more points available in the next race, the close and loudly cheered Senior Medley Relay. In this, the Maroons had an initial advantage with J. Shepard's famed backstroke, but Tony Hirsch made up the deficit in the breaststroke shift, and Lee Smith held it in the freestyle to come in no more than inches ahead of the Maroon, W. Chipman. From that point the Greys built their lead steadily through the remaining events.

One of the most exciting moments of the day was furnished by a novelty, the Junior B Tub Race. In this the two contestants had to navigate the distance between the docks by paddling in tubs made by sawing an old vinegar barrel in half, and very tricky navigation it was too! A slight shift of weight would capsize the tubs and an ordinary canoe stroke with a paddle would set the crazy craft spinning like tops. Mark Follansbee and Robin Wells skillfully accomplished the whole course without catastrophe and made it one of the closest races of the meet.

At the end of the diving events, the score was 118 to 94 in favor of the Greys. Since the high value of 40 points had been placed on the climactic War Canoe race, the Maroons still had a hope of retrieving the day. It consequently caused considerable consternation when the first running of the race was declared void as the result of each canoe having bumped into the other at some point during the course. The race was therefore run a second time, and on this occasion the Greys, paddling the course nearer to the shore, won a clear victory of more than a length. This put the day's victory on ice for them by a margin of 64 points.

The Summary:

COMBINATION RACE — Winner: Maroon Team (J. Pethick, T. Benua, G. Lohnes, M. Hertenstein, D. Gardner, J. Shepard).
 JR. B CANOE RACE — First: J. Colthup, S. Hall (G); Second: B. Johnson, D. Cole (G); Third: H. Curtze, A. Nyitray (M).
 JR. A FREESTYLE RELAY — Winner: Maroon Team (M. Peppe, D. Hoch, A. Nevai, D. Beggs, D. Gardner, D. Burr).
 SENIOR CANOE BOBBING — First: E. Hershberger (G); Second: Tony Hirsch (G); Third: W. Chipman (M).
 JR. B MEDLEY RELAY — Winner: Maroon Team (Richard Barnes, B. Gardner, J. Dunnick).
 JR. A CANOE RELAY — Winner: Grey Team (R. Roberts, R. Robinson, E. Hershberger, P. Gelpi).
 JR. B BALLOON RACE — First: W. Putt (G); Second: D. Dunnick (M); Third: B. Conner (G).
 SENIOR MEDLEY RELAY — Winner: Grey Team (T. Krumm, Tony Hirsch, L. Smith).
 JR. A IN-AND-OUT CANOE RACE — First: D. Beggs, M. Crispin (M); Second: E. Hershberger, P. Gelpi (G); Third: J. Fish, P. Nevai (M).
 JR. B TUB RACE — First: M. Follansbee (G); Second: R. Wells (M).
 SENIOR CANOE TILTING — Draw.
 SENIOR DIVING — First: W. Keating (G); Second: K. Wheeler (M); Third: A. Nevai (M).
 JR. A DIVING First: D. Hoch (M); Second: W. Hauser (G); Third: R. Bennett (G).
 JR. B DIVING First: Robert Barnes (G); Second: B. Gardner (M); Third: B. Escher (G).
 WAR CANOE RACE — Grey Team.

While the water meet was in progress, the Greys racked up another aquatic victory by making a sweep of a set of four sailing races. D. Seeger of the Greys took two races in the Cape Cods from Maroon Sam Cushman. In the Tech dinghies, J. Teichert, Grey, defeated C. Rogers in the first race, and G. Tittman, Grey, polished off C. Cox in the second. This gave the Greys 110 points to 40 for the losing Maroons. The races were close and the racing conditions were the best that the Sailing Department has enjoyed in a couple of years.

Many Awards, No Score at Campfire

No report on the score was made at the campfire of August 18. This was in accord with the custom of allowing the suspense to build up for the banquet. The Saturday evening gathering at Council Point was therefore devoted in the main to the proclamation of Achievement Levels and other awards produced by a very busy week. This process stretched well into the dusk and brought out several points of interest. Mike Smith announced the names of the first four campers to complete the top Sailing rating of "Skipper". They are S. Cushman, J. Denise, W. Diehl and C. Rogers. When Jack Welton, for the Swimming Department, made known a list of five new Lake swimmers, he also revealed that there remained only eight campers who had not accomplished this swim this summer. This must be a record, and is certainly a credit to the summer's very effective course of swimming instruction.

Notice: New York Trip Schedule

The Directors have suggested that the Wigwam print the following statement concerning the trip of the Eastern boys to New York City:

"The boys will leave camp Saturday, August 25th. They will arrive in Boston at 1:25 P.M. and leave via the New York, New Haven and Hartford line from South Station at 2:00 P.M. They will arrive at New London at 4:03 P.M.; at New Haven at 4:49 P.M.; at Stamford at 5:44 P.M.; and at Grand Central Station at 6:30 P.M."

"Due to close connections in Boston, if we should miss the 2:00 P.M. train, we will take the next train down one hour later. Mr. Chace, a Senior Counselor, will be in charge of the trip."

Due to imperatives of time which are of no interest to anyone but the sucker who wrestles with them, this number of the Wigwam has to be "put to bed" a day earlier in the week than is customary. Because of this irregularity, any report on the events of Sunday, August 19, failed to get in under the wire. Notice of the services and tournaments of the season's last Sunday must therefore be included in the coverage of the closing week to be found in the next and last number of the 1956 Wigwam. This is scheduled to appear, with all the data from the banquet, on August 30 and will be mailed with all possible dispatch to the interested parties.
